YALE LINE-UP IN GAME

ROCKEFELLER ON THE STAND

Recent photograph of John D. Rockefeller, showing head of the Standard Oil trust in centre of group.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—John D. Rockefeller, head of the Standard Oil Company this afternoon took the witness stand before Special Commissioner Franklin Ferriss and testified as a result of the suit instituted in the United States Court in Missouri to dissolve the great trust for alleged violations of the anti-trust laws.

The appearance of the financier caused sensation.

Mr. Rockefeller took the stand in a small room on one of the upper floors of the new Custom House, on Bowling Green.

He will be asked to answer a long list of questions prepared by Mr. Rosenthal, the chief lawyer of the Standard Oil's defence.

Then the Government's chief prober, Mr. Kellogg, will cross-examine him.

Mr. Kellogg has wanted to question the big chiefs of Standard Oil ever since the taking of testimony began, but there was a grave obstacle.

John D.'s Testimony.

Q.—What is your full name. A.—John D. Rockefeller.

Q.—Where do you live? A.—My legal residence is in New York at No. 4 West Fifty-fourth street.

Q.—What was your first connection with the oil business? A.—My first connection with the oil business was in the year of 1860 or 1862. Not earlier than 1860 nor later than the beginning of 1862.

Q.—You were a very young man then? A.—Somewhat younger than I am to-day.

Q.—What part of the business did you engage in then? A.—I engaged in the refining of oil.

Q.—With whom were you associated? A.—There were five partners directly connected. Morris Clark, James Clark, Richard Clark and Samuel Andrews and myself.

Q.—Had you a refinery? A.—We organized the corporation under the name of Andrews, Clark & Company, and constructed a refinery. We began the work of construction in the early part of the year 1860 or 1862. The exact date of its completion I cannot say, but it was probably not many months after we began the construction.

Q.—What was the size of the refinery. A.—Couldn't state exactly. It was a refinery, while small, of good size.

Q.—How long did you continue business relations with your association. A.—Until early in 1865, when the co-partnership was dissolved. I bought the property and the business.

INJUNCTION AGAINST UNIONS IN LABOR WAR

WOODBURY & LEIGHTON GET COURT ORDER ON BRICKLAYERS AND PLASTERERS.

Judge Loring, in the Supreme Court today, granted an injunction restraining Plasterers' Union No. 10 of Boston, Bricklayers' Union No. 3 of Boston and Bricklayers and Plasterers' Union No. 25 of Salem from combining and conspiring to force the contracting firm of Woodbury & Leighton to comply with demands of the second named union.

An injunction was also issued again Local Bricklayers' Union No. 3, restraining its officers and members from inducing plasterers to strike on jobs controlled by the Woodbury & Leighton Co. The court declined to grant the blanket injunction asked for whereby all officers and members of the International Bricklayers' Unions, numbering over 100,000 men in this country and Canada, should be restrained from conspiring or interfering with workmen employed by the plaintiff.

The Woodbury & Leighton Co. had been declared unfair by the Boston bricklayers' unions. The firm sublet two contracts on the Salem High School and the new Registry of Deeds in that city. The Plasterers' Union, in order to assist the bricklayers, struck the Salem jobs, and the court found that there was no justification for plasterers to strike to aid bricklayers even though such an agreement was in effect between the international unions of plasterers and bricklayers. The court declared that such agreements between international unions may be legal, but that they are invalid if they result in a sympathetic strike, where a contract exists.

Judge Loring took issue with Attorney F. W. Mansfield, who represented the unions, and the court declared that no individual could be punished for contempt if he was unaware of the injunction and its terms.

PRIEST DEFENDS WOMAN'S NAME OVER HER BIER

Many in Congregation Moved to Tears at Funeral of Mrs. Stahl.

"Slander, cruel as it is false, has been raised."

"Put yourself in her place."

With these and other pitying and tender words, the Rev Father D. J. O'Farrell, rector of St. Francis de Sales Church, Roxbury, spoke earnestly at the funeral of Mrs Julia Stahl today in pastoral defence of the unfortunate young widow of "Chick" Stahl, the ball player.

Father O'Farrell's words came just at the close of the solemn high mass. The church was crowded with relative and friends of the widow and of her late husband. Baseball followers testified their friendship for Stahl by attending Mrs. Stahl's funeral, even though they did not know her personally.

As the priest spoke the congregation of mourners stirred in sympathy. Women sobbed. When Father Farrell concluded with solemn invocation for divine mercy for us all, the weeping of women could be heard from many parts of the big church.

Father O'Farrell's eulogy was in full as follows:

"This solemn high mass here offered today is for the repose of this poor soul whom God called away so abruptly. It is hard to find consolation in these dreadful cases and hard to offer any to sorrowing relatives. Yet the knowledge of a good life brings that consolation which is found alone in God.

Was Early Bereaved.

"The early life of this poor girl is consoling, spent as it was between her home, her school and her church. The priest of this parish spoke well of her when, two years ago, she was married to the man of her affections.

"How sad to relate the tragedies of these two years. Scarcely her honeymoon was over when she became a widow. Her beloved husband, in a frenzied condition of mind, took his own life. None whoever knew him, and he had many friends, admirers and well wishers, could believe this act was deliberate and sane.

"Then, in a day, her life was blighted, her hopes all gone and her heart broken. She tried to hide her grief and be resigned. She clothed herself in fine clothes, but all was of little use to heal a broken heart.

"Who can tell the miseries she has endured on these two sad anniversaries? The voice of slander, cruel as it was false, has been raised.

"But put yourselves in her place and reflect how you would bear yourselves under such sad affliction. Had she died in a silken bed there would be no slander. But, making her way home in her loneliness and sorrow, death found her.

"She attended her church regularly and was a faithful member of it, doing her best for its interests. This is well known.

"Oh, the pity of it. Let us pray for her soul. Let us pray for ourselves. May we all meet in God's sweet mercy, in that happy land where tears are wiped away and death is no more."

Cousins Are Bearers.

Father O'Farrell was celebrant of the solemn high mass. The Rev. M. J. O'Connor was deacon and the Rev. Miles Kiley was sub-deacon.

Krautschke's mass music was sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. Nellie A. Ryan, Miss Anna G. Daly, James M. Wood and Edward A. McGonagle. Mr. McGonagle sang "O, Jesu, Deus Pacis" for the offertory solo.

At Calvary Cemetery a final prayer at the grave was offered by Father O'Farrell.

The pallbearers, all cousins of Mrs Stahl, were Fred J. Sullivan, James W. Coulter, Jeremiah F. Donovan, Daniel M Donovan, Patrick J. Donovan and Timothy J Bresnahan.

Among the baseball followers noticed at the church were "Mike" Regan, Jerome Kelly, groundkeeper at the American League baseball grounds, and many others interested in or directly connected with the national game with which "Chick" Stahl was so identified.

The floral offerings filled two carriages.

Call for the League Ballot

Boston primaries in every ward precinct to-morrow from 6 a. m. to 4 p. m. There will be a complete Independence League ticket in the field. All enrolled Leaguers, new voters and those who have not voted in a primary for four years should call for the Independence League ballot.

FOUR DETAINED IN PROBE OF THEFT OF MRS. STAHL'S GEMS

Charged with the larceny of four rings, valued at $665, the property of the late Julia Stahl, the young widow of "Chick" Stahl, who was found dead under mysterious circumstances in an Ellery street doorway Monday night, James Sweeney, John O'Toole, John Cook and Michael J. Quinn, all under eighteen years of age, were arraigned to-day in the South Boston Municipal Court before Judge Joseph D. Fallon.

SHIPS DISABLED IN COLLISION

The fishing schooner Washakie and the bark Silicon crashed together last evening in the Narrows while the former was leaving and the latter entering Boston Harbor, and masts went over the side, booms, yards and rigging littered the decks, and, strange to say, not a man aboard either craft was killed or injured. But a number had close calls.

The Washakie, brand new and just back from her second trip to the fishing grounds, is lying at Green's yard, in Chelsea, where she was built, totally dismasted and with bowsprit and bulwarks gone. The Silicon is anchored off Quarantine with the stump of foremast showing above deck and other signs of disaster on her starboard bow.

Captain Simmons of the Silicon said: "We were being towed through the Narrows by the tug Neponset when I saw the fishing schooner headed toward us. I only saw one man on the deck, and he was at the wheel. When he appeared to notice us the schooner was almost aboard of us. Then the man at the wheel seemd to lose his head. Instead of putting the schooner on the starboard tack, he threw on the port tack and she hit us on the starboard bow."

SMUGGLER ON CANOPIC GETS AWAY

The United States customs officers in Boston to-day made public the news that they had discovered a smuggler of diamonds on board the White Star liner Canopic, and that they seized over $1,000 worth of gems which he had hidden under the false bottom of a smugglers' trunk.

The officials believe that the man is a member of a gang which have been entering the port of Boston and defrauding the Government out of thousands of dollars in duties on diamonds.

The young smuggler escaped during the rush and crowd when he had seen his trunk seized by the officers. The police are hunting for him to-day in Boston and in Providence, R. I. They believe that the smuggler gang has headquarters in both cities.

When the "Canopic" docked yesterday, a trunk, peculiar in form, attracted the attention of Customs Inspector Paul C. Mason.

It was found upon being taken to the appraisers' stores to have a false bottom, in which was concealed $1,000 worth of Florentine and Neapolitan jewelry.

The trunk had this name and address: "Alfred Esposeto, 53 Atwell street, Providence, R. I." The young man passenger who claimed it disappeared soon after the customs authorities took possession of the trunk.

LANDLADIES TO GET CHANCE TO OBJECT

Boston landladies will have an opportunity to voice their objection to any ideas of the report of the Lodging House Commission to Mayor Hibbard, and to urge changes at three public hearings before the commission. The first meeting will be held for Back Bay landladies at the Price School on Newbury street next Monday evening. Lodging house keepers in the West End will voice their opinions Saturday evening, November 28, at the Bowdoin School on Myrtle street, and the South End landladies will gather at the Parker Memorial on December 3.

BOSTONIANS WOULD LIFT ART TARIFF

The American Free Art League has started a campaign for the repeal of the tariff on works of art. A committee of the league will go before a committee of Congress at Washington, November 28, for this purpose. A meeting of the league will be held in the Tavern Club in Boston to-night. The league has already drafted a bill which provides for the admission to this country of all works of art done by hand, free from tax. These works includes paintings, sculptures, drawings, etchings, engravings and antiquities made previous to 1800.

B. & A. TRAIN COLLISION

A crowded suburban passenger train on the Boston & Albany railroad bound out of Boston collided with a freight train at Allston station this afternoon. The passenger train was derailed, one woman passenger was hurt by flying glass, and a number of others, mostly women shoppers returning from Boston, were badly shaken up and panic-stricken by the accident.

The combination baggage car and smoker of the passenger train was knocked completely off the track and fell over on its side. It was filled with men. None of them more than bruised and shaken up.

The passenger train left Boston for Riverside at 12:35 p. m. Just before it pulled into Allston station it collided with the freight train.

Woman Badly Scared.

There was great excitement in the two passenger coaches, especially among the women. They were calmed by the members of the train crew. Both cars were completely derailed.

In the smoking car, which was tumbled over on its side, all was confusion. Many men were cut by flying glass. They crawled out of windows to safety.

The train wreck completely tied up traffic on two tracks of the road. Wrecking crews were sent out on a hurry call to clear the road in time for the homeward-bound suburban rush.

The collision was due to a misunderstanding of signals. The freight train was bound for the freight yards at Beacon park.

CRIMSON FOOTBALL MEN OFF

Thousands Cheer Team As It Leaves for Yale Battlefield.

With a rousing send-off, never excelled before, the Harvard football contingent left this afternoon for Farmington, Ct., where they will make their final efforts preliminary to Saturday's great gridiron battle with Yale at New Haven.

One thousand students crowded into Harvard square and cheered the Crimson warriors as they left Cambridge at 1 o'clock. The parting word from Captain Burr, the giant captain of the team, was:

"I don't want to make any positive statement. But it's the best team I ever saw while I have been at Harvard."

With this knowledge, the immense crowd that saw the team off was in rare good humor and wildly enthusiastic.

The team was accompanied all the way to the Back Bay Station by a large crowd, which gave more cheers when the contingent left on the 2:04 train. Some of these "fans" accompany the squad all the way to Hartford in the two special cars on the train.

$15 Charged For Tickets.

An idea of the immense crowd which will be at the game, and the greater throng eager to get seats at New Haven was furnished by the fact that ticket dealers, who have procured some reservations, are charging the unheard price of $15 each for tickets. At the Adams House to-day, that price was set for all tickets, and the sale was brisk.

The following men were taken with the team to-day: Captain Burr, R. C. Browne, G. G. Browne, Corbett, Crowley, Cutler, Cutting, Dunlap, Fish, Forschermer, Galaiti, Gray, Graydon, Hadden, Harding, Hoar, Houston, Kennard, Leslie, Long, McGuire, Nourse, Pope, Robinson, Smith, Sprague, West, White, Withington, Ver Wiebe, Managers Eggleston, Amory, Sender and Coaches Houghton, Campbell, Daly, Lieutenant Graves of Rhode Island and Kersburg.

Dinner at Quarters.

Arriving at Hartford, the football squad will take special trolley cars and go directly out to Farmington, where the men will arrive in time for dinner this evening. While in Farmington the team will take all its meals at the Country Club and stop at the famous old Elm Tree Inn, in Farmington square.

The Harvard football eleven had its last strenuous practice of the season in the Harvard Stadium yesterday afternoon, closely watched by more than 2,000 enthusiastic students, who marched from the square in a body to participate in one of the greatest football demonstrations in Harvard football annals.

All of the varsity football players were on the field in their football togs, and all were in trim condition. Captain Burr, who is scheduled to play the first half of the game with the Elis, Saturday, was out in his togs, and for the first time his arm was free from bandages with which it has been bound. He seemed to be in splendid condition. Dunlap, whose shoulder was slightly bruised in the Dartmouth game, Saturday, was on deck yesterday, in as good shape as ever.

WARD 19 HAS ONLY ONE CANDIDATE

Ward 19 has only one candidate for the Democratic nomination for Alderman in the Tenth district. Usually there are a dozen or more aspirants. William H. Doyle, formerly in the City Council, is the sole candidate. There are two candidates in Brighton. One is Michael J. Coyle and the other is P. J. Callahan. Mr. Callahan spoke in Ward 19 last night in his own behalf, saying: "If you can't support me, support Mr. Doyle. Coyle has either held a political job, a political office or a political contract for the past twenty-five years."

WINDUP IN WARD 20.

The campaign for ward control in Ward 20, where the "Red Devil" Democracy and the "Tip Cart" faction are fighting to the death, will wind up to-night in a whirl.

While the Powers faction is holding forth in the wardroom, the O'Connell forces will be heard in Norfolk Hall, Washington street.

WOULD BUILD EVERETT "L" OVER MARSH

Decided opposition to the route suggested by the Boston Elevated for the extension of the elevated structure through Everett was expressed to-day to the railroad commission by citizens and by the legal representatives of some of the business industries of that city.

City Solicitor Nelson P. Brown of Everett presented a plan of a route which had the approval of the Board of Trade of the city and which also met with the approval of the citizens who appeared at the hearing. This route takes the elevated structure out of the residential sections of Wards 4 and 5 and carries it across the marshes beside the tracks of the Saugus branch of the Boston & Maine.

Ex-Mayor H. Heustis Newton thought that neither plan would do much to relieve the condition that prevails in Everett, where the citizens are at the mercy of those coming from communities beyond Everett so far as the getting of seats in cars is concerned.

Ex-Mayor Newton thought that the electrification of the tracks of the Saugus branch of the Boston & Maine would be the best way to solve the problem.

W. P. Bailey of Everett spoke in favor of the route suggested by the Elevated. He said:

"There would be some property damage, but that always happens, and where the general good is at stake there must be a yielding on the part of those who may be inconvenienced."

Among the other speakers were City Solicitor Nelson P. Brown of Everett, Councilman Robert S. Leighton of Ward 4, Everett; Benjamin J. Downes, member of the Board of Trade; James F. Cavanaugh, H. M. Twombly, Robert H. Gardner, all of whom protested against the Elevated's proposed route, on the ground that it would inconvenience the citizens of Everett rather than give them rapid transit.

PERMIT TO USE DUMP IS REVOKED

The Board of Health to-day revoked the permit granted to the owners of the property at Ballou avenue and Mascot street, Dorchester, allowing them to dump ashes and refuse on the lot, as residents in the vicinity complained. The owners of the property have been notified that all refuse must be removed within forty-eight hours. Recently there was a general protest of the residents in the vicinity of the lot that the smoke and the stench arising from the burning refuse was a source of general annoyance and a menace to the health of the citizens in the neighborhood. There was another meeting of protest last evening, and Henry G. Smith, on behalf of the remonstrants, sent a communication to Mayor Hibbard asking an abatement of the nuisance.

GIBLIN RALLIES TO-NIGHT.

Thomas J. Giblin, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Board of Aldermen in the First District, which includes Wards 1 and 2, will hold rallies tonight in Booth's Hall, Orient Heights; Stirk's Hall, Saratoga street, and at Lyceum Hall, Maverick square.

WEARY BIKERS START THIRD DAY WITH RUSH

The weary six-day bike riders at the Park Square Coliseum track mounted their wheels for the third day's trip at 3 o'clock, and some sensational scrapping on the path was looked for before the men finished up at 1 o'clock to-morrow morning. They all sprinted like demons at the start.

It was the first day in the week when the schedule of hours had been changed any, and the management started the event at a later hour in order to allow the theatrical profession and others who could not get around at the usual hour of closing, and a big turnout was anticipated late in the evening.

The men failed to show any bad signs of the terrible bruising pace they have endured the last two days and beating the record by sixty miles. The twelve teams swore that they would hang together, no matter what the fast sprinters did in trying to break up the field.

They figured that if they survived to-day, which was the hardest of the week, coming half way, that they would be able to stick it out.

Walker, the Australian, who got a fall late yesterday, was on deck again with his face looking as if he had been a prize fight, but the stocky rider was not to be left at the switch when his partner, Pedler Palmer, wanted his services to pull the team through.

There was evidence of some of the fast teams combining in order to steal a lap before the day's racing was over, as Moran and Clark followed each other alternately and were forcing the field along at every opportunity, trying to drive the steam out of the others.

It was surprising how well all the teams hung on in spite of the efforts of the speedy ones to get away.

The dare-devil Jake DeRosiers, the intrepid Frenchman, was ready to make another try for the track record in his motor cycle. He was out in the afternoon tuning up and hoped to do 1:20 for the mile, an almost impossible feat for such a short track.

Hugh McLean also was after a new mark in an exhibition behind pace and travelled the circuit at breakneck speed.

POLICE TRIAL FOR SERCEANT

Complaining that Sergeant Stillman B. H. Hall, of Station 4, insulted him publicly, on a public street, in the presence of his wife, Colonel Thomas N. Wood, commander of the Marine Barracks in the Charlestown Navy Yard, has preferred charges against the sergeant on the grounds of conduct unbecoming an officer.

It became known at police headquarters to-day that Hall was tried by a board consisting of Captains J. A. Buckley, Thomas C. Evans and George T. Yeaton. He pleaded not guilty. The finding of the board will be given to Police Commissioner O'Meara.

GIRL DEAD, GAS TURNED ON

WORCESTER, Nov. 18.—Lena Carlson, seventeen years old, was found dead in her room at the home of Mrs. Joseph O. Adams, No. 1 Berkshire street, early today. The gas in the room was partly turned on and death is believed to be due from this cause. Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker will hold an autopsy.

The Carlson girl had been in the country but six weeks. She went to work for Mrs. Adams as soon as she arrived in Worcester, where she has four sisters and a brother. It is thought that she got up earlier than her usual time, lighted the gas, and then seeing the time went back to bed, leaving the gas burning. A draught from the window probably blew it out. She was found lying on her bed partially dressed.

MORSE SUED FOR $40,000; NEW TANGLE

Sensational Exposures Threatened in New Action Against Banker.

DIVORCE CASE EXPOSE

The troubles of Charles W. Morse, the former steamship and ice magnate, who is now under sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment for violating the National banking laws, and whose recent trial interested Boston and all New England, are not over, for he is to-day made defendant in a suit for $40,000 brought against him by Edward M. Bracken, the confidential agent in the Dodge-Morse divorce tangles. Bracken says his disclosures against Morse will be most sensational.

Dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN from New York say that Bracken has turned upon the lawyers who formerly handled the private affairs of Mr. Morse. Bracken says that he will "lift the lid" from the whole scandal when his two suits are tried, for he has entered another against Judge Edward P. Coyne of No. 25 Broad street, for $4,000, which he claims is due him as a balance on a sum of $7,000 he claims was deposited with the attorney to be paid him when certain work had been done.

Up for Hearing To-day.

A. Edward Woodruff of No. 165 Broadway has been retained by Mr. Bracken to prosecute both suits. The action against Coyne is on the calendar to be reached to-day, while Gifford, Hobbs and Beard, counsel for Morse, have asked for a bill of particulars in the Morse suit, which Bracken must furnish within ten days.

Bracken's claim for money is based upon his contention that Charles W. Morse was responsible for the tangle of legal proceedings in which was incorporated the Dodge-Morse case and the trial and conviction of "Abe" Hummel. Bracken's allegations will show that it was Morse's money that financed all of "Abe" Hummel's operations. Morse's object, according to Bracken, was to secure an annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Clemence Dodge, so he might marry the widow of a former business associate, whose fortune he was handling in the capacity of a trustee.

Here is the backbone of Bracken's case against Morse:

First—That in 1903 Morse and his present wife entered into an arrangement for a divorce and that Mrs. Morse went to live in Sioux Falls, S. D., where she engaged a firm of lawyers and prepared to establish a legal residence.

The Divorce Tangle.

Second—That Morse used the assumed name of "Mr. Wyman," which is his middle name—Charles Wyman Morse—in all his transactions with Abe Hummel, of Howe & Hummel, and was known by that name in his law office.

Third—That Morse upon learning that the woman he intended to marry, subsequent to the obtaining of a divorce by his wife, would not marry a divorced man, recalled Mrs. Morse from Sioux Falls, S. D., and made plans for the annulment of his marriage.

Fourth—That Morse personally called up Hummel on the telephone, complaining of the delay in serving Mrs. Morse with the summons and complaint in the now celebrated annulment suit, which sent Hummel to prison and smirched the reputations of a half dozen members of the New York bar.

Fifth—That when Bracken with the summons and complaint and a witness reached the Morse residence at No. 728 Fifth avenue in October, 1903, Morse had his head out of an upper window watching for his coming, and that the door was promptly opened, and Mrs. Morse was then served.

Sixth—That a fraction of the money used by Morse in keeping himself out of prison along with Hummel and to carry through the scheme is represented in a loan of $104,000 made by the National Bank of North America at his direction to Captain "Uncle Jim" Morse, which has never been paid.

Seventh—That "Abe" Hummel is now living in Europe upon a substantial income from a fund placed to his credit by his former wealthy client, "Mr. Wyman"—the client preferring to pension a man whose inclinations under any other sort of arrangement might be to return for more

ONE SIDE OF HEAD ENTIRELY BALD

Hair Began Falling Out After a Severe Illness—Consulted Several Barbers without Satisfaction—Friend Cured Same Trouble with Cuticura and Advised Its Use.

CUTICURA REMEDIES EFFECTED HIS CURE

"After a severe attack of sickness my hair fell out all over. One side of my head was completely bald. I was frightened, not knowing what to do for it. I was almost wild. I consulted several barbers with no satisfaction. A friend of mine told me that his hair fell out in patches all over. He had secured a set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent which stopped his hair falling out and made it grow again as thick as ever. He induced me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I began using them and in forty days more or less, I noticed my hair coming out all over the bald spots. I was so glad I did not know how to praise the greatness of Cuticura. I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Ointment and two bottles of Resolvent Pills. I can prove by numbers of persons that I was bald before using the Cuticura Remedies, and you may use my name as a guarantee of their wonderful cure. George Simmons, 1630 So. BALLOON DRIVEN BY GALE LANDS ON CITY WIRES

ROCKVILLE, Ct., Nov. 18.—After two hairbreadth escapes from death, once by being dashed against a chimney from the car of their balloon and the second time escaping uninjured from a tangle of trolley and electric wires, two aeronauts, William W. Morrison of Minneapolis and William Van Sleet of Pittsfield, Mass., are thankful to-day that they are alive. They landed here yesterday afternoon after one of the most thrilling flights in years.

From the time the men started in their balloon, "The Pittsfield, in the Heart of the Berkshires," until they landed in this place an hour later, they travelled at an average of over seventy miles an hour. Part of the time they attained an altitude of 11,000 feet, the greatest ever attained in America.

Their balloon, "Pittsfield in the Heart of the Berkshires," left Pittsfield at 2:55 p. m. Charles J. Glidden was to have accompanied Pilot Van Sleet, but changed his mind on account of the gale and snowstorm which prevailed. Morrison, who is a hardware man from Minneapolis, bravely took Glidden's place in the car.

Gale From Northwest.

Much trouble was experienced in the ascent, owing to the heavy storm. Finally, when the word came to let go, the big gas bag shot up and was lost to sight in no time in a heavy snowstorm.

The gale, which was from the northwest, drove them along at a terrific pace, which tilted the car so much at times that the two men in it had to hold on with both hands to keep from being spilled out.

On and on they went, now under the storm, now in it, and now far above the clouds. Finally at 4 p. m., when they were about over Rockville, the wind tore a slit in the top of the balloon.

For a moment or so the balloon dropped like a plummet. Then the wind, changing, buoyed it sufficiently to retard its perilous fall downward. Suddenly it dropped again and hit the surface of a dirt road in the middle of the village.

The balloon bounced up from the earth as if it were a rubber ball. It came down immediately on the roof of a house, tearing away the chimney. Morrison and Van Sleet narrowly escaped being dashed to death.

The balloon next dropped on a trolley wire in the main street and broke the wire, giving the aeronauts an electric shock that made them howl with pain.

Tears Down Wires.

Like a wounded whale the balloon then thrashed around, tearing down telegraph and telephone wires and the city fire alarm circuit, and dashing itself against the side of a frame house, the windows of which were all smashed by the impact.

The collapsed airship rose again, and at last settled on a dog kennel in the yard of Christian Numaker.

One of the dogs bit Pilot Van Sleet on the tender part of the leg.

Morrison, after taking several stiff drinks, said he would go up in a balloon again the next time he got a chance. He took an early evening train for New York city.

The balloon was taken in charge by the chief of police. It will be held pending the settlement of the damage done to the city's property. Mr. Van Sleet was allowed to go to his home in Pittsfield.

Weak Little Boys

may become fine strong men. Some of the strong men of to-day were sickly boys years ago. Many of them received at their mother's knee. This had a power in it that changed them from weak, delicate boys into strong, robust boys.

Scott's Emulsion

It has the same power to-day. Boys and girls who are pale and weak get food and energy out of Scott's Emulsion. It makes children grow.

50,000 DOOMED IN BOSTON BY WHITE PLAGUE

—MAYOR HIBBARD

Fifteen thousand children in the public schools of Boston have tuberculosis, according to an estimate made by Mayor Hibbard. This amazing declaration was made by the Mayor in an address at Charlotte, N. C., in which he said that 50,000 persons in this city are doomed to die of the "great white plague."

The figures are startling, since there are not more than 110,000 children registered in the schools. That fifteen out of every 110 of these has consumption is almost beyond belief, and if so furnishes an enormous problem for the health department and for others who have the work of stamping out the dread disease in hand.

The Mayor said:

"In the matter of tuberculosis among children, accurate data is not possible. Dr. Grancher of Paris, however, in an examination of 4,000 children in that city, has found 15 per cent. of tuberculosis cases, and these figures are substantially verified by the investigations of Dr. Philip of Edinburg.

Fund to Fight Disease.

"An examination by the Consumptives' Hospital trustees in Boston of 650 children, who had one or more consumptive parents, revealed 36 per cent. suffering from active tuberculosis, and of 1,000 children examined, including the 650 enumerated, 68 per cent. had the disease in some form or other. Taking Dr. Grancher's figures and applying them to the school population of Boston, there would be at least 15,000 children in our public schools to-day who have tuberculosis.

"Boston needs more money for the new year for the campaign against consumption which it is making. In this work it is my feeling that the financial burden is one that should rest on the State rather than the city in part, if not entirely. But pending the settlement of this phase of the problem, our obligation is to do all in our power.

"For the fiscal year of 1909 I am prepared to allow a considerable increase in money to the Consumptive Hospital department for construction and maintenance. My explanation for this course to the people will be that this is one of the cases where the economic waste due to retrenchment is so great that the city cannot afford to retrench. I am in no danger of being accused of exaggeration when I assert that money spent in the cure of tuberculosis brings greater returns than almost any other form of municipal effort. Tuberculosis it is true, is only one small part of the whole problem of public health.

Says 50,000 Are Doomed.

"Of the people now living in the city of Boston 50,000 are doomed to die of this dread disease, and the estimates show at least 15,000 adults in Boston actually suffering from tuberculosis. It can thus be seen that while the building of a street or a public park may be postponed for a year or more, at the expense solely of public convenience, the fight against disease must be carried persistently, or the toll will be taken inevitably and no retrenchment be possible.

"Speaking from the economic standpoint, the money cost of tuberculosis falls into two classes. First, the loss of earnings of patients for an average of more than three years before death, with the cost of medical attendance, special food, etc., etc., which average $2,100 for each death.

"This makes the actual cost to the people in Boston who die of tuberculosis, for the expenses of their sickness and actual loss in wages, more than $3,000,000 a year.

"Second, accepting the estimates of Professor Fisher of Yale, Dr. Price of Maryland and the great foreign experts, the capitalized value of the lives reduced by an average for both sexes of twenty-one years, making all possible deductions, is about $8,000 each, so that the loss from deaths alone each year in Boston means a loss to the people of the city of more than $9,000,000.

Enormous Money Loss.

"On this basis, and following the estimates made by the leading economists in the world, the economic loss from the 50,000 persons now living in Boston, who will eventually die from this disease, unless combatted or conquered, will be $400,000,000, or about four times the entire debt of the city."

EUROPEAN TOUR ELECTION

DELUGE OF BALLOTS IN GREAT VOTING CONTEST

Sunday School Children of Greater Boston to Play an Important Part in the Result.

GREATER Boston is waking up in fine fashion in the BOSTON AMERICAN'S great European Tour election, in which the thirty-six most popular Sunday School teachers, to be chosen by public ballot, will be given elaborate free tours of Europe next season.

The voting is getting heavier every day. Just at Present the 500 candidates are "warming up" for the final spurt and judging by the vast number of ballots already cast, the closing weeks of the big contest will be replete with interest and excitement.

Here are the leaders up to last night:

District No. 1—Edith Pineo, Presbyterian Church, Hyde Park.

District No. 2—Elizabeth Bingham, First Presbyterian Church, Brookline.

District No 3.—J. J. Mulvihill, St. Mary's Church, Watertown.

District No. 4—Maurice R. Flynn, Sacred Heart Church, Malden.

District No. 5—Margaret T. Prest, St. Patrick's Church, Stoneham.

District No. 6—Margaret M. Better, Church of the Immaculate Conception, Revere.

District No. 7—J. F. Higgins, St. John's Church, North Cambridge.

District No. 8—Ella McCrillis, Broadway M. E. Church, Somerville.

District No. 9—Helena Tortorella, Church of Our Lady of Pompeii, Boston.

The most interesting stage of the European Tour Contest is now on. Henceforth the boys and girls of Greater Boston are going to play quite as important a part in the election as the men and women.

If every boy and girl should cast even ONE VOTE for his or her favorite Sunday School teacher, there would be some mighty interesting changes in the election next day!

A word about the SPECIAL BALLOT:

Do you understand what it is? Just this—a simple method of voting, introduced in the contest by the BOSTON AMERICAN, solely for the convenience of contestants and their friends. That's all.

Every time a SPECIAL BALLOT is cast in the contest it means that some teacher's vote increases by 1,000. That's a pretty good feature, isn't it?

One SPECIAL BALLOT, good for 1,000 EXTRA votes, is GIVEN FREE by the BOSTON AMERICAN with every subscription of thirty weeks to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Two SPECIAL BALLOTS are given with a subscription of sixty weeks.

All candidates and the friends of candidates should bear in mind that it is impossible to buy votes in the contest. The BOSTON AMERICAN would not sell votes even at $1,000 apiece.

Votes can be secured only by clipping them from the daily AMERICAN or SUNDAY AMERICAN.

And the only way a SPECIAL BALLOT can be secured is by subscribing for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Write to the European Tour Editor or telephone him at the BOSTON AMERICAN office, and ask about the SPECIAL BALLOT schedule.

L ROAD WANTS $6,650,000 TO BUILD SUBWAY

The stockholders of the Boston Elevated Railway Company to-day voted at a meeting held in Wesleyan Hall, Bromfield street, to authorize the increase of capital stock from $13,300,000 to $19,950,000, the proceeds of the issue, if approved by the Railroad Commission, to be used to finance the construction of the Cambridge subway.

The shareholders first voted to rescind their motion passed a year ago, when they voted to increase the capitalization by $8,000,000. The total number of shares represented by the vote on the increase to-day was 78,702. There was no opposition to the proposition.

It was suggested by the motion to increase the capital that the shares be offered to the stockholders at 110. This price must be approved by the Railroad Commission.

General William A. Bancroft presided over the meeting and D. L. Prendergast acted as clerk.

NAVY YARD MEN TO GET MORE PAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Letters are being sent out by the Navy Department to about 1,000 employes of navy yards throughout the United States, notifying them of an increase in salaries ranging from 1 to 10 per cent. The effect is to bring the rate of pay up to that of similar kinds of work in the other branches of the government service.

BATTLESHIP FLEET READY TO GO TO CHINA

MANILA, Nov. 18.—The mighty Atlantic battleship squadron, now in these waters, is ready to figure as a powerful factor to preserve foreigners' lives and interests in China in case of serious upheavals there.

The battleships will probably be detained for a time in the Pacific, awaiting developments.

The Asiatic squadron of the Pacific fleet, consisting of the armored cruisers West Virginia, Colorado, Maryland and Pennsylvania, and other cruisers and torpedo vessels, is coaling and taking on supplies here in preparation for possible orders to sail for China.

It is considered inadvisable to send the battleships to any point north of Shanghai to remain at this time of the year, as navigation will close soon.

Civil and military opinion is that America occupies the most advantageous position, which would be weakened by the fleet's withdrawal, December 1. Without leaving Philippine waters, the fleet can uphold the American guarantees of an open door and the integrity of China.

It is estimated 10,000 troops could be spared from the Philippines, the scouts and constabulary replacing them until reinforcements could arrive from the United States. The battleship fleet could put 5,000 bluejackets and marines ashore, the Pacific fleet 1,000 and the marine corps 1,000, should a landing force be needed to protect Christian interests.

MILLIONAIRE ELOPES WITH DIXIE BEAUTY

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—The son of a Pittsburg millionaire and a girl known in the South for her beauty, eloped from the Pennsylvania city, were married in Dixie land and came to Chicago meaning to break the news to the young man's parents over the long distance telephone. This they did last night and after receiving the parental blessings, the husband, William R. Scaife, heir of C. C. Scaife, was told by his mother to "bring Sallie home." Sallie is the former Miss Sallie Hill of Bolivar, Tenn.

The couple left this morning. The marriage is an alliance of Pittsburg millions with one of the "old" families of the South, for Miss Hill is the youngest daughter of Colonel Jerome Hill.

SHAW CONFERS WITH CRANE ON SENATE FIGHT

Salter of Lynn in Treadway Camp?—Rumors Keep Leaders Guessing.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT

United States Senator Winthrop Murray Crane and State Senator James F. Shaw to-day discussed the contest for the presidency of next year's State Senate in the lobby of the Hotel Touraine. Their fifteen-minute conversation, watched by more than a score of persons, was marked by emphatic gestures on the part of both. The two parted, seemingly at variance on certain points of their discussion.

Neither would tell what was said. Shaw, however, told his friends before he went to the Touraine to-day that he was "going up to see Crane to find out just how he stands on the Senate presidency fight." Senator Crane is the political patron of Senator Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge, Shaw's opponent for next year's Senate chair. The adoption of Treadway's candidacy by the Lodge wing of the Republican party in Massachusetts is regarded by party politicians as a concession to Crane.

Rumor to-day in Republican and State street circles had it that Senator William R. Salter of Lynn has revoked his promise to vote for Shaw and alligned himself with the Treadway supporters. Guy W. Currier, corporation counsel, is the man who turned the trick for the Treadway camp, the rumor said.

The capture of Salter would give Treadway eighteen votes, a majority of the thirty-four Republicans elected to next year's Senate. "We've got a majority now," said Treadway followers.

Shaw, however, was just as jubilant. "Treadway hasn't got Salter yet," he said. "Treadway can make all the announcements he wants to about having a majority, but at least two of his promises are conditional."

Whether or not Salter has left the Shaw camp and declared for Treadway, he did see Guy Currier yesterday at the latter's office, No. 84 State street. Senator Grimes of Reading, also counted as a Shaw supporter, saw Currier at the same time. Republican politicians to-day forecasted that Grimes would soon somersault to the Treadway squad.

BAGPIPE AND VIOLIN FOR SLIGO DANCE

The Sligo Ladies' Wild Rose of Lough Gill Club will dance in Paine Memorial Hall to-morrow night. The club was organized in April, 1907. With the Sligo Social Club they gave an entertainment for the benefit of the Irish language, netting a handsome sum. Margaret Moran is chairman of the committee of arrangements. There will be a concert from 8 till 9 o'clock, which will include singing and dancing with special Irish airs on violin and bagpipes.

John Horan will be floor marshal, with John Cavanaugh assistant. Miss Katherine Keaney, president of the club, will be floor director, with Miss Katherine Toomey as assistant.

JOHN W. OGDEN MADE RAILWAY INSPECTOR

The Railroad Commissioners to-day appointed John W. Ogden of Maynard, inspector, to take effect, December 1, 1908. He will be assigned to the district of Mr. Grafton Upton, recently resigned.

ROXBURY COUPLE WED.

Miss Margaret M. Clancy of No. 8 Oswald street, Roxbury, was married to-day to John F. Flannery, also of Roxbury, by Rev. Father Googan at the Mission Church. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John S. Doyle, No. 6 Oswald street. The couple then left for a trip to New York and Washington, and on their return they will reside at No. 116 Brook street, Brookline.

RATE REDUCED; PHONE STOCK DIVIDEND UP

Earnings of New England Company Increased Since Cutting of Tolls.

SEVEN PERCENT EXPECTED

Despite the plea of poverty made by the officials and attorneys of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company at the hearing on the petition to reduce telephone rates in Boston, the company is about to increase its annual dividend from six per cent. to seven per cent., according to a prominent business man who holds a large block of stock.

Although the flat telephone rate was reduced from ten cents to five cents in twenty-three city and suburban exchanges last April as the result of recommendations by the Massachusetts Highway Commission, the earning capacity of the company has apparently not suffered. On the other hand it seems to have increased, for the last block of telephone stock sold yesterday was sold for $129 per share, which is three dollars higher than the stock sold for at any time last year when the higher rates were in force.

During the last three months the Telephone stock has jumped $16 a share, and in view of the proposed increase in the annual dividend it is likely to go higher.

The New England Telephone Company stock has sold at a higher price at all times this year than last. The lowest point reached this year was $105, whereas last year it went down to $96.

While the company has reduced the flat rate in several of the city exchanges and in all of the suburban exchanges within a radius of five miles of City Hall, they have made up for this by charging a higher rate for night service on the toll lines.

Last year a person could telephone for half the regular rate between the hours of 6 at night and 8 in the morning. Under the present schedule one must pay the regular rate until 10 o'clock at night. The half rate is given only between the hours of 10 at night and 4 in the morning.

TIED UP TROLLEYS TO MOVE HIS BARN

Otis C. Thayer of Lancaster doesn't mind a little thing like a street car line or a few telegraph and trolley wires when it comes to a question of moving a barn, and as a result the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway tracks were blocked and traffic held up in Clinton for more than five hours, and now trouble is brewing for Mr. Thayer.

Thayer was given the contract last week, when the barn was purchased by Thomas F. Burke and Thomas H. Hastings, and immediately started work, but the company secured an injunction to prevent him from moving the building across the tracks. Judge Waite in the Superior Court, however, dissolved the injunction and work was once again started.

OLD-AGE BANK INSURANCE PLAN A BIG SUCCESS

Great Interest Shown in What Whitman Institution Is Doing.

$150,000 IN POLICIES OUT

The system of old age insurance, endowment and ordinary life policies furnished by savings banks at cost has, after five months of trial in the State, passed beyond the experimental stage and is now pronounced an unqualified success in every sense of the term.

Since June 18 of this year, the Whitman Savings Bank, the first, and, until within two weeks ago, the only bank in the State that took advantage of the law permitting savings banks to issue old age and life insurance policies, has insured 248 persons, the face value of these policies being $150,000.

At first, when the plan was imperfectly understood by the people, the number of policies taken out was so small that its success was problematical, but, starting with only five applications in the first two months, the volume of business has gradually increased until the bank at Whitman now does a rushing insurance business, having had thirty-one applications for old age and endowment policies on Tuesday, with fifty more on the waiting list, and more than 200 additional letters of inquiry on hand.

Union Men Interested.

The list includes working men, manufacturers, professional men, women in all walks of life, and philanthropists; and requests for literature on the question and speakers to explain the workings of the plan are pouring in so fast that the bank has been compelled to refer all such inquiries to the State Actuary, R. C. Hunter, of No. 161 Devonshire street, in this city.

These requests come principally from the trade unions, but the employes of the large department stores, the women's clubs, churches and unorganized workers are also interested, and fifty such meetings have already been arranged for by Mr. Hunter in this State, with a large number of other States making like requests, which cannot be granted owing to the fact that the law restricts this line of insurance to residents of the State of Massachusetts.

Acting as agents for the Whitman Bank, and giving their services without pay, as required by law, are the following firms: The Commonwealth and Regal shoe factories of Whitman, Filene Co-operative Association, Conrad & Co., Henry Siegel & Co., China Hall Company, Laboratory Kitchen Company, Boston Bookbinding Company, F. Vorenberg & Co., Rand, Avery Supply Company, and the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, all of Boston; the Phelps Publishing Company of Springfield, the Bridgewater Savings Bank and the Ludlow Savings Bank. These agents are all bonded as required by law, and several other firms have also made application for an agency.

Holders of First Policies.

C. H. Jones, president of the Commonwealth Shoe Company, has the honor of holding policy number one, and Miss Alice Harriet Grady, private secretary for L. D. Brandeis, the author of the bill, holds the first policy issued to a woman. Both Mr. Jones and Miss Grady have taken an active interest in the measure since it was first introduced into the Massachusetts Legislature, and they are giving freely of their time and energy to propagate the idea, having, with others, addressed a number of public meetings with that end in view. The great percentage of policies are held by workingmen, however, fully 90 per cent. of the total number issued being taken by wageearners.

Any person between the ages of 15 and 60 may be insured under these policies, but no person is allowed to take out a policy for more than $500 for endowment or death, nor more than $200 a year of old age insurance. The usual old age policy being taken out calls for $100 a year, which is payable every birthday after one reaches the age of 60 or 65, as the insured elects, the premium to be paid each month varying from $1.03 by a person 18 years old to $4.75 a month by a person 50 years old. In case the person insured dies before he is eligible to the old age pension, his heirs are to receive the full amount due on the face of the policy, and should he die after starting to receive the yearly premium, but before the sum total received amounts to that sum, his heirs are to receive the balance due. This rule also holds good with the endowment policies.

No Solicitors to Pay.

In addition to these benefits, which are said to be double those paid by old line insurance companies, any profits made by the bank through its insurance department are to be paid to its policy holders, this being provided for by law, and the same rule holds good in all cases where savings banks engage in the insurance business in this State.

There are no solicitors to pay, no commissions for collecting the premiums, no advertising bills and no high salaried officers.

The State furnishes all books and pamphlets, and it also attends to the advertising. The agents give their services free, and the speakers and writers are content to work for the good of humanity, which no doubt accounts for the high benefits and low premiums, and which also explains how the idea is being pushed to the front so rapidly throughout the entire State.

R. E. Hunter, the State actuary, receives an average of fifty letters a day asking for information about the plan, and it is significant to note that these letters come from every State in the Union.

Yesterday he received two letters from young men living in Montana, each of whom wished to take out old age pensions in this State. "If possible, tell us how to get the benefits given the people of Massachusetts?" they wrote; and, not being eligible under the laws of this State, Mr. Hunter could only advise them, as he has advised hundreds of others, to use their influence to have a like law passed by their own State.

Incentive Is Provided.

"There is a great difference between the old age pension plans of Germany and England and those of Massachusetts," said Mr. Hunter.

"In Germany, for instance, a portion of each workingman's wages are withheld by his employer, who in turn pays a certain sum, which is added to by the government, and a fund thus created to provide pensions for aged workers who might otherwise become objects of charity.

"In England, on the other hand, the government raises its money by general taxation for the same purpose, both of these systems, to my way of thinking, being objectionable, as they place the thrifty and industrious workingman on the same level as the idle and dissolute person who has little thought of the future so long as he can live on others.

"Under our method, every man gets the full benefit of every dollar he pays out for protection. In other words, there is an incentive provided, and the man who is willing to exercise a little self-denial when young need not fear the approach of old age. He has provided for the future."

"This is the first generation of women wage workers," said Miss Grady. "And the trend of the times being toward individual effort as women become more independent of men in the field of industry, I consider that it is of the highest importance for them to provide against want in their old age. I am not a club woman, neither am I accustomed to ride any special hobby, but I do think that it is wise to make this provision, and hope that a still larger number of women will become interested in this plan in the near future."

Benefits to the Bank.

"We were somewhat in doubt of the advisability of going into the insurance business, as there is not one cent of profit attached to it," said Treasurer Alden of the Whitman Savings Bank. "But the incidental benefits derived by our bank are such that they fully repay us for our trouble, while the good done for those who under other conditions might not make any provision against old age or death are such that I sincerely trust every bank in the State will follow our lead and give the working people a chance to get reliable insurance at the lowest possible cost."

NEW YORK.—Rear-Admiral Adams has been transferred to the Charleston Navy Yard from the post of acting commandant at the navy yard here. Captain Ten Eyck D. W. Veeder, who commanded the battleship Alabama on its voyage around the world, will succeed Rear-Admiral Adams here.

NEW YORK.—What is said to be the most precious and biggest telescopic lens ever imported to this country was unloaded from the steamship St. Andrew of the Phoenix line at the foot of Seventh street, Hoboken, consigned to Mount Wilson Observatory at Pasadena, Cal. Dr. George Hale, scientific authority on the sun and a famous astronomer, was in charge. The lens weighs nearly six and one-half tons and in its unpolished state is valued at $40,000.

GRAND RAPIDS.—Circuit Judge Perkins has issued a mandamus directing the Grand Rapids Veterinary College to admit Felix D. Rocker and Wesley D. McCoy, colored students. The color line had been drawn against them this year, although they had completed one year of the course.

NEW YORK.—The taxicab strike has been definitely and finally declared off, and most of the old chauffeurs are back at work. The company recognizes the new union of the chauffeurs, but insists upon the open shop.

MRS. JORDAN WILL FIGHT FOR CHILDREN

Declares Husband's Attempts to Get Them Are Prompted by Spite Only.

HE CAN SEE THEM ANY TIME

Insisting that she has the legal right to her daughter, Madeline, Mrs. Florence Jordan of South Braintree declares she will fight any action on the part of her divorced husband to secure the custody of the child. Mrs. Jordan has had the child in her keeping. On Monday Mr. Jordan took her away from relatives at Northfield, Vt. Mrs. Jordan was immediately notified and went to the North Station to meet the husband and daughter. A struggle for the girl then ensued until the police interfered and allowed the mother to take the girl home with her.

"My husband went up to Northfield and took Madeline away just for spite," said Mrs. Jordan. "He has had every opportunity to see the children, but did not seem to care enough about them to go to see them. This last action of his is not prompted by love. It is spite against me entirely.

"At the time of the divorce my husband secured the custody of the children, Madeline, who is now almost fifteen years old, and Ella, who is twelve. In 1903 an agreement was drawn up whereby I was to have the children. I have the document which Mr. Jordan signed granting the children to me.

Will Fight for Children.

"It is hard enough to have to work hard and support myself and two children without having him making trouble every little while. Mr. Jordan does not and never has contributed to the support of the children. For a year Madeline was with my mother, Mrs. Brown, in Wakefield. Mr. Jordan went to see her only once in all that time. He was treated very well, asked into the house and accorded every courtesy. The story that he did not know where the children were and that he could not see them is false. He can see them any time he wants to and will always be treated right. He can see them without seeing me, if he wishes.

"If he engages counsel to regain the custody of Madeline I shall do the same. I shall fight the case and prevent him taking her away from me. She herself wants to stay with me. The girl is almost fifteen years old now, and I think she is old enough to know and decide for herself with which one she wants to live. If he really cared for the child, it would be different, but he does not.

Says It Is Spite.

"The whole thing has been done to spite me. He heard that Madeline went up to Northfield last Wednesday, and I suppose he thought that if he went up and took her away I would be considerably bothered. I haven't gotten over the experience yet."

Mrs. Jordan is at present employed as housekeeper for Edward Thayer, a motorman on the street railway at Braintree. His wife was burned to death a few years ago.

Mr. Jordan is a postal clerk at the Harvard square postoffice, and lives with an aunt at No. 83 Pemberton street, Cambridge.

HOUSE BROKEN INTO AND FIRED

SAUGUS, Nov. 18.—Fire Chief Webber thinks that an incendiary broke into the house at No. 224 Lincoln avenue about midnight and fired the building. State Officer Arthur G. Wells is investigating. The house adjoins the building occupied by the Cliftondale fire hose company. About 2 a. m. Joseph Quint, who lives several houses away, awoke and saw the sky lighted up by a glare and the upper part of the neighboring house and the roof of the fire department building ablaze. By the time the Saugus firemen got busy the damage to the house, which is owned by Charles W. Amerige, amounted to $2,500.

HONOR SIGNING OF COMPACT ON MAYFLOWER

The Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants will celebrate the 288th anniversary of the signing of the compact on the Mayflower in Provincetown Harbor by holding their annual dinner at the Hotel Vendome Saturday evening November 21.

The guests of the evening will be Robert O. Harris, justice of the Superior Court; Charles Dana Burrage, president of the Massachusetts Society, Sons of the Revolution; Constantine Graham, acting consul general for Great Britain; Mrs. Adeline F. Fitz, president general of the daughters of the Revolution; Rev. R. Perry Bush of Chelsea, Edward Clarence Battis, president of the Massachusetts Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and Charles A. Hopkins, deputy governor general of the Society of Mayflower Descendants.

The annual dinner this year is expected to be one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever held by this distinguished society. There will be a reception at 6:30 o'clock, to be followed by the dinner at 7 o'clock.

Secretary George Ernest Bowman of the society is receiving many requests for dinner tickets from members, and the committee in charge of the dinner, consisting of Asa P. French, United States District Attorney; Edwin S. Crandon, Miss Mary F. Edson, Mrs. William B. Holmes and Frank Rumrill is working hard to make the dinner a notable one.

DRAG MAN FROM UNDER THE BED

Mrs. George A. Green of No. 22 Mellen street, Cambridge, heard something move under her bed at about 1 o'clock last night and her scream brought her husband and two sons to the room in a hurry. They hauled James H. Rowe from under the bed. A telephone call soon brought the police.

Rowe said he is twenty-two years old and lives in Medford. He explained that he had not broken into the house with any evil intent. He had done it because he had been drinking. The police said he climbed a crab apple tree which stands beside the house and from a branch had opened and crawled through a second story window.

In the Cambridge District Court to-day he was held in $500 on the charge of breaking and entering.

CONVICT BANKER DIES IN HOSPITAL

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 18.—David Rothschild, a former New York banker, who had been serving a sentence of ten years' imprisonment in Sing Sing prison, is dead in the hospital there. For several weeks he had been in New York, where he had appeared as a witness in court, and was brought back to the prison only last week. His death is attributed to heart failure, but it occurred so suddenly that Coroner Squire will hold an inquest.

LASSELLE SOCIAL CLUB MINSTRELS

The nineteenth annual minstrel show of the Lasselle Social Club of East Cambridge will be held in Institute Hall, Friday evening, under the personal direction of Frederick B. Munroe. Daniel F. McCarthy, president of the club, will be in the interlocutor's chair. The end men will be Lawrence Silkes, James Harrington, Charles F. Donovan, Charles E. Mallahan, John Dillon and Joseph Sullivan.

FALLS TO BASEMENT.

Thomas A'Hearn, elevator man for the Goodman, Leavitt & Yatter Company at No. 57 Washington street, fell from the first floor of the building to the basement, breaking his right arm. A large pasteboard box containing a fur overcoat broke the force of the fall.

MAGRANE MARRIES BROOKLYN GIRL TODAY

Miss Monica Markey of Brooklyn, N. Y., will become the bride of Mr. Patrick Henry Magrane of Boston at the rectory of the Church of St. Francis Xavier, that city, this evening. The Rev. David B. Hickey, pastor of the church, will officiate.

Miss Markey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Markey, and is very popular in society circles in Brooklyn. She will be attended at the wedding by Miss Mary Markey, her sister, as maid of honor, and by Miss Genevieve Markey and Miss Martha Magrane as bridesmaids. The best man will be Mr. Louis E. Underwood, Yale '98.

Mr. Patrick Henry Magrane graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the class of '02, and is very well known in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Magrane will reside, after a wedding trip, at No. 63 Rawson road, Brookline.

MRS. GARDNER MAY LOSE HER ART TREASURES

Attorney Says Boston Society Woman Might Relinquish All Claim to Seized Goods.

IGNORANT OF THEIR ENTRY

That Mrs. "Jack" Gardner may lose all claim to the priceless collection of art treasures and curios which her Chicago friend, Mrs. Emily Crane Chadbourne, brought into this country as "household effects" and which were seized by the United States customs authorities, Mrs. Gardner's attorney, Henry W. Swift, to-day declared to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

The United States government to-day in the Federal Court in Chicago is seeking to have the entire shipment forfeited and turned over to the government to be sold. This is in addition to the $80,000 in duties and penalties which Mrs. Chadbourne has already paid on Mrs. Gardner's collection of bronzes and tapestries which she brought to this country in boxes labeled "household goods." Mrs. Chadbourne is a wealthy society woman of Chicago and one of Mrs. Gardner's close friends. Mr. Swift's statement to-day indicates that Mrs. Gardner has washed her hands of the whole matter of which she has claimed to know nothing from the first. She has admitted the goods were hers and that she had them stored in Paris. Just why Mrs. Chadbourne brought them to the United States has never been disclosed.

"Mrs. Gardner is not represented by counsel at the trial of this suit which, I learn by the papers, the government has brought," said Mr. Swift. "I am of the opinion that she will be, but I myself will be unable to go.

"This suit being a foreclosure, if won by the government, will deprive Mrs. Gardner of this property which is hers for they will then be no more hers, than your's or mine or anybody's.

"As I understand it, the only way she could get them back would be to buy them at public auction for the government sells all goods which comes into its hands as these did at public auction.

"It seems to me that this suit is a very harsh measure of procedure. It is too bad that a fine, well-intentioned woman, who was trying to do what she thought to be only a kindness toward a friend should be treated this way and that Mrs. Gardner should be placed in the possible position of losing her art treasures. Of course, Mrs. Chadbourne was foolish to attempt what she tried to do, but it looks as though the government ought to be satisfied now that she paid the duty.

"While I believe that the customs laws in this respect are too strict, they are on the statute books and must be enforced. In this case the procedure comes out in all its harshness. Mrs. Chadbourne's actions were not inspired by desire for gain as common smuggling is, for she thought she was doing her friend, Mrs. Gardner, a service."

BUYS $2 STEAK FOR HER DOG

New Yorkers are excited to-day because a Boston woman paid $2 for a tenderloin steak in the Hotel Manhattan for her Boston bull terrier. Here is what dispatches from New York to the BOSTON AMERICAN tell of the affair:

Yesterday a wealthy society woman of Boston, before starting home by automobile, went to the head waiter of the Hotel Manhattan and ordered a tenderloin steak for her Boston bull terrier. She gave the man 50 cents to see that the steak was properly prepared and then paid a boy 25 cents to carry it to the baggage room and feed the dog. This made the steak cost $2.

"I have ordered broiled chicken for Hector, but he absolutely refuses to eat it unless half starving. He prefers steak and wants it tender, too. As he only eats meat once a day I want him to have what he likes."

Later the dog started for Boston with his owner and her family in a large limousine automobile.

SNAPSHOTS at SOCIETY

Quite the most brilliant of the early debutante affairs is the reception and tea which Mrs. Robert H. Gardiner is giving at her Beacon street home this afternoon to introduce her attractive young daughter, Anna. Assisting at the various tables will be several of Miss Gardiner's fair friends as well as her sister, Mrs. Livingston Davis (Alice Gardiner), who before her marriage last Spring was the first vice-president of the Vincent Club.

A notable wedding this evening will be that at the First Congregational Church in Fairfield, Me., of Miss Mabelle Lillian Keyes of that town and Dr. George Goodwin Averill of Cambridge. Dr. Averill was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given by several of his fellow physicians in Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson have just returned to their Brookline estate, "Weld," from New York, where they attended the Horse Show. They made the trip in their motor car and brought with them Mrs. Elsie French of New York, formerly Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who will be their guest for several days.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Weeks of this city are shortly returning to Washington, where they will spend the Winter, occupying the former residence of Senator and Mrs. Dryden. They will have with them their young daughter, Miss Katherine Weeks, whom they will introduce to society in December.

* * *

Another Washington bud of interest to Boston is Miss Carrie Munn, daughter of Mrs. Charles A. Munn, who figures so prominently in the North Shore Summer colony. Miss Munn will be presented at a dinner dance to be given at the Munn residence in Washington, Dec. 29.

The Frederick Ayers, who spent the Summer at their villa at Beverly Farms, have come up to their country house in Brookline, which they will occupy for several weeks before opening their Commonwealth avenue residence.

* * *

Boston society, and especially the North Shore contingent, is always interested in the movements of Mrs. James McMillan, who, according to some of her intimates, has left her West Manchester Summer home and gone for a few weeks' stay at Virginia Hot Springs. Her lively young granddaughter, Miss Grace Jarvis, in the meantime, has hurried off to Paris, where she will be joined by her aunt, Lady Herrington, who will assist her in purchasing the frock for her coming out season.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Spaulding, who spent the Summer motoring in Europe, have just returned to America and have gone down to their villa at Manchester for the Winter. During the absence of the Spauldings in Europe Mrs. William A. Russell, of Boston's youngest and wealthiest widows, occupied their Summer place. Mrs. Russell has just sailed for England en route for South Africa.

* * *

Miss Priscilla Stackpole, daughter of the Henry Stackpoles, who have just returned to town from their Summer home at Nahant, is the guest of Mrs. George von L. Meyer and the Misses Meyer at their home in Washington.

Mrs. Howland Jones of Cambridge has gone to Paris to spend the season with her mother, Mrs. Albert French, who has a Winter home there. Later on Mrs. Jones and her mother will spend a few weeks on the Riveria and in Italy.

About Well Known Persons

FREDERICK TOWNSEND MARTIN, of New York, society leader and brother of Bradley Martin, has announced that he proposed to give his time and attention this Winter to the raising of money among society folk and others for the purpose of fighting tuberculosis. Mr. Martin said he personally would visit the East Side and see for himself the conditions complained of that made for a spread of the disease.

MRS. JOSEFA OSBORN, society dressmaker, whose will has been filed in New York, left an estate valued at $250,000, most of it to Ernest Lawford, the English actor she was to have married, it is said, next month.

MAJOR-GENERAL JOHN F. WESTON, commanding the Philippines division, has notified the War Department that upon the advice of his physician he will be obliged to leave the Philippine Islands on December 16. General Weston has been suffering from malarial fever.

PRESIDENT-ELECT TAFT, it is reported on good authority, will visit Havana to attend the inauguration of General Jose Miguel Gomez, on January 28, as President of Cuba.

TO THE

Democratic Voters of Boston

The Street Commission is composed of three members. The chairman, Salem D. Charles, comes from West Roxbury. The other member, James A. Gallivan, comes from South Boston. His membership on the Board amply protects South Boston's interests.

The scope of the Street Commission's work extends into every part of the city and the Board should be representative of the different sections as far as its limited membership will admit.

Mr. Kennedy comes from the large and growing section of East Boston, which has an equal claim with South Boston for representation on the Board.

HON. P. J. KENNEDY.

Don't you think that fair play calls for the nomination of Patrick J. Kennedy?

My experience in the Board, covering a long period of years, makes me feel strongly that the selection of two out of three members from one particular district would be a great mistake.

The office of Street Commissioner is the most important one to be filled at this year's municipal election. The Democracy should nominate its best man. Mr. Kennedy's experience as a business man and his proven executive capacity in municipal affairs make him a splendid candidate.

Attend the primary election tomorrow (Thursday). Polls open at 6 a. m. and close at 4 p. m.

Guglielmo Ferrero, Italy's Famous Historian, Comes to Boston To-Day

Character sketches by Boston American staff artist of noter Italian historian who lectures at Lowell Institute, and photograph of his wife, who is the daughter of the noted criminologist, Professor Lombroso.

DISTINGUISHED STUDENT AND AUTHOR IN BOSTON FOR LECTURE COURSE.

Guglielmo Ferrero, the most distinguished student of history in Europe to-day, and his wife, who is the daughter of the world famous criminologist, Lombroso, of Turin, come to Boston to-day, Signor Ferrero to deliver an address at Lowell Institute to-night. He is to be the guest of William Roscoe Thayer, and will deliver eight lectures at the Institute while here.

Signor Ferrero's coming is a notable event. He is the man who has revivified the Rome of Caesar and Augustus, stripped it of legend, interpreted its story in terms of modern phychology, and given to the world the inspiration of its experience, not as the relic of a people dead, but as the national heritage of an Italy 2,000 years old.

From Boston the Ferreros will go to Washington, where they will be the guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt. In the middle of December he will be in New York to lecture at Columbia University, and later will go West.

Intellectual Europe Interested in Us.

Signor Ferrero is intensely interested in America and Americans. He expressed himself frankly concerning the country and its people. "Intellectual Europe," he said, "is looking more and more to America. Why? I should say primarily because of its economic importance and its geographical position here, with Europe on one side and Japan on the other.

"Will I write a book on America? Oh, no; not on America. It is far too bold for a foreigner to undertake to analyze the institutions and character of a people of whom he can get only a superficial glimpse.

"But I do hope to be able to tell something of how Americans see Europe and how Europeans see America. I have seen many types of American in Europe. They differ in many ways from Europeans in their ideas and concepts, and I should like to present a study of these contrasts in a form of expression that has been much neglected—the dialogue.

"Because of the rush of modern life it has become seemingly difficult to express in the form of dialogue the divergent views that are, for instance, voiced by Americans and Europeans on an ocean voyage of five or six days. I should like to be able successfully to portray the types assembled there and give to the public in entertaining form the studies there made possible."

Shatters Old Tradition.

The fourth volume of "The Greatness and Decline of Rome," which includes Sig. Ferrero's lectures at the Sorbonne two years ago, has just been published in English. The fifth volume of his history of Rome is in the Italian and will be out in English early next year. It brings Rome down to the close of the reign of Augustus.

It is in this work that Ferrero has shattered the concepts of Mommsen that Rome was and Italy is. His history was a challenge from the first chapter to accepted traditions of all the writers of history who have gone before. Europe has criticised him, called him a sensationalist, an iconoclast—but it has been compelled to listen and finally to recognize the common sense of Ferrero's analyses.

"My studies," said Sir Ferrero, "have led me to the conclusion that the Italy of to-day is the outcome of the Rome of yesterday. It is the continuity of history that gives it its value. We must not get far away from the truth that human nature was the same 2,000 years ago as it is to-day, and human institutions have not changed so much as appearances sometimes indicate."

Sig. Ferrero's comparison of the political organization of Caesar and Clodius, the tribune, and the most common of this country, and his likening of Bryan to Cataline, have attracted wide attention in America.

Old Politics and New.

"Where did I get the idea? I was reading in an American or English review an account of the activities of Tammany and the details of its organization," said Sig. Ferrero.

"The similarity of their methods was so marked that it became one of the most striking examples of the recurring fact in history that there is not much new. There was in Rome a district organization, the captain of which used its beneficences to recruit the electorate for political purposes. How does that differ from your district organizations of the leaders?"

DAN FLANAGAN DIDN'T THINK QUICK ENOUGH

If former Alderman Daniel Flanagan only had foresight enough to insist that his cousin, William J. O'Donnell be given the machine support for Common Council before yielding the machine's request that he step out of the aldermanic fight to make way for John Attridge, the political situation in Ward 9, Boston, might be different to-day.

But Dan didn't, and it's anybody's guess up in the South End ward whether "Cousin Bill" or Bob Howell wins one of the Common Council nominations at to-morrow's city primaries. Isaac Gordon and Thomas McKeagney, also Common Council aspirants, were indorsed by the machine. The machine leaders then looked around for the third pick.

"O'Donnell," whispered Mat Birmingham, faithful organization man, in Leader Jim Donovan's ear.

"Howell," widspered Jack Magee, also F. O. M., in Donovan's other ear.

O'Donnell, who has been a member of the ward committee for three years, thought he saw the indorsement coming his way. Howell, however, wasn't sleeping. He got 200 young men in the ward to sign a petition to the Quincy Club leaders that they indorse the Howell candidacy.

Result: The club leaders refused to discriminate against either by indorsing the other. The ward voters will decide the matter to-morrow.

But if Dan Flanagan only had, etc., etc., the situation would be different.

BOY SHOT DIES IN MOTHER'S ARMS

MARION, O., Nov. 18.—Emmett Osborne, ten years old, was accidentally killed by his brother, fifteen, at their home near Richwood, yesterday. The boys were starting on a hunting trip when the older boy's rifle struck against a door and was discharged. The bullet entered Emmett's abdomen. He died in his mother's arms.

LEAVES PUBLIC BEQUESTS OF THOUSANDS

The will of the late Mrs. Julia M. Marsh filed for probate in the Suffolk County registry to-day, contains several public bequests. She leaves a trust fund of $50,000 to the New England Industrial School for Deaf Mutes in Beverly, which is to be known as the Charles Barrett Fund, in memory of her father.

She bequeaths $75,000 to the Harvard Musical Association as a trust fund to maintain suitable rooms, and also gives it valuable portraits and paintings, a grand piano, violins and a mantel vase made from the wood of the old frigate Constitution.

The income of a trust fund of $100,000 is bequeathed to George Hayward Binney, a grandson. To Mary D. Barrett, a sister, is bequeathed $50,000. Gifts are made to several house servants.

Mrs. Marsh was the widow of Charles Marsh, a member of the Jordan Marsh Company. She died on Saturday morning last at her home on Commonwealth avenue, after a few hours' illness.

WIFE DECLARES SPIRITS LURED BARNES TO DIE

Astral Hands Beckoned Psychologist to Suicide and He Yielded, She Says.

LEFT PATHETIC LETTER

That Professor William A. Barnes, the eminent psychologist, who took his own life by shooting himself while in the Back Bay station, had delved so deeply into the realm of the beyond and knew so much of the occult that he was forced to follow the beckoning of immortal hands and enter the unknown, is the belief of his brave but stricken wife.

"I know my husband fought against the call of the unseen, the dwellers in the world beyond for at least six years," said Mrs. Barnes to-day to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter at her home, No. 35 St. Botolph street.

"I helped him fight against the impulse to take his own life, but it proved too strong for him in the end. Many a time he said that he thought that he had done all the good he could do among mortals and that the immortals were calling him to join them.

Lived on Same Plane.

"We lived together in perfect harmony and oftentimes we actually dreamed the same dreams. W were born to the same spiritual plane and our thoughts were usually in common. I knew that he was fighting off the call from the unseen, which he knew more about than it is given most men to know.

"Oftentimes he said: 'I would like to go now if I could but take you and Ellen (our daugater) with me.'

"I would say: 'No, you must not. You do not know, but that your act would separate us in the other existence and that you might have to work up to our level because you took our lives.

Parted for Last Time.

"Now I am alone. He has gone. I feared it. Perhaps he decided to go first and work out his probationary period, if he is ti have one there, so that we can meet and be together when the call to leave life comes to me and I die.

"Yesterday he kissed me many times and embraced me and was very demonstrative. I can see now, as we parted for the last time. As he walked away he turned repeatedly to wave his hand to me, and it seemed that he could not see enough of me those moments which I now know were our parting moments."

Last Letter to Family.

How well Prof. Barnes loved his wife B., a pathetic letter, his last written farewell, and one that the wife and child read through their tear-dimmed eyes when they found it lying on his desk, reveals. The letter follows:

"1 p. m., Nov. 16, 1908. Darling—You have been everything to me and I love you dearly—more than I can describe. You have always had me first in mind and you have done everything that a loving, devoted wife could possibly do. There never was a truer or more devoted wife and I could not love you more.

Ellen (daughter) also is the best girl that ever lived. There was never a truer or better nature. May God bless both of you.

"I have decided that I have lost my usefulness and would only be a burden to the world if I should stay longer. Nothing would give me greater pleasure than to care for you and Ellen, but I seem to be unequal to the duty. Remember, I have always loved you and you have done more than your share, so don't give my act too serious thought. Enjoy life as long as you can. Your loving husband,

"WILLIAM A. BARNES.

"P. S.—I hope that good, whole-souled people will be kind to you in this time of great distress. Don't let this shock kill you, dear. It may all be for the best, we don't know."

BUILDER HARRIS MUST STAND TRIAL

Max Harris of No. 169 Howard avenue, Roxbury, must stand trial on the charge of violating the building laws in connection with the collapse of a building in the course of erection at No. 31 Greenock street. In this collapse two men were injured. Harris was indicted by the Grand Jury, and later arraigned before Judge Schofield in the Superior Court and held in $1,000 for trial. It is alleged Harris failed to live up to the requirements of his permits in erecting the building, a temporary shoring to the girders of the first floor giving way.

ARCHBISHOP BUYS SITE FOR NEW CHURCH

Acquires Title of Hooper Estate, Dorchester; Structure for St. Paul's Parish.

BEGIN BUILDING AT ONCE

Rev. Joseph G. Anderson, pastor of St. Paul's Church, Dorchester, to-day announced the purchase by Archbishop O'Connell of the Hooper estate in Dorchester. A church will be built on the site for the parishioners of St. Paul's.

The Hooper estate comprises about three acres of land. It is bounded by Magnolia, Hartford, Robinwood and Hooper streets, near the Roxbury-Dorchester line.

The estate is assessed for $36,000, $28,000 being on the land. John B. Fitzpatrick of the Kimball building, real estate broker, represented Archbishop O'Connell in securing the title of the estate.

It is the intention of Father Anderson to commence work immediately for the erection of the new church, which will take the place of St. Paul's Chapel on Woodward Park street which was recently connected with St. Peter's Church of Meeting House Hill, of which the Rev. Peter Ronan is pastor.

Recently Archbishop O'Connell set off that part in which the chapel is erected as a parish and assigned Father Anderson as pastor. The district has grown so rapidly that the need of a new church became necessary. Hence the purchase of the Hooper estate for that purpose.

$1,400,000 FOR BOSTON HARBOR

Despatches from Washington to-day contain the recommendation of General W. L. Marshall, chief of engineers for the United States army, for an expenditure of $1,400,000 for the improvement of Boston Harbor. The recommendation is comprised in his annual report, in which he urges the improvement of harbors and rivers. He also includes several recommendations for improvements in Provincetown, New Bedford, Fairhaven and Sandy Bay, Cape Ann.

Keep the Soldiers In Good Condition

—the little soldiers in your blood, known to scientists as white corpuscles. Their important duty is to defend you against disease germs that attack the red corpuscles and the bodily tissues.

You are helpless unless they are in condition to fight for you.

How shall you know whether they are in this condition or not?

By your looks and feelings.

If you are troubled with eruptions, scrofula, eczema, catarrh, rheumatism, anemia, langour, that tired feeling, loss of appetite, or nervousness, you may be sure that the little soldiers in your blood are not healthy and strong, and are not in condition to fight for you.

In this case you certainly should begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla at once and should take it faithfully.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest preventive as well as curative medicine. It effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than 20 different ingredients, each greatly strengthened and enriched by this peculiar combination. There is no real substitute for it. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good" you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make and yields the dealer a larger profit.

Get Hood's Sarsaparilla today in usual liquid form or in chocolated tablets known as Sarsatabs. 100 Doses One Dollar.

NEGLECT OF STREETS ISSUE FOR DESMOND

"Yes, I am a candidate for Street Commissioner. I am going to have the nomination of the Independence League. If I am not elected it will be because the people in Boston don't appreciate capacity for honest public service.

"After this fight is over," said Cornelius J. Desmond, of Ward 24, who made the foregoing statement, "the taxpayers of Boston ought to know a great deal more than they do now about the outrageous manner in which their streets have been neglected. I'm going to tell them what I have discovered, and I've found out a great many things that ought to interest the voter and the stay-at-home fellow.

"For several months I have been quietly but searchingly investigating street department conditions. I have been 'delving into things,' as the reformers say. You might say I have been doing a one-man finance commission stunt. My report, which I will make at the ward rallies of my party, will be more interest compelling, I believe, than the best efforts of Matthews and Sullivan.

"My Duty to the People."

"Without indulging in personalities, for I don't believe in that sort of thing, I intend to make some word pictures of Patrick J. Kennedy, probable Democratic candidate for street commissioner, that will be unique. I see he says that he 'owes it to the city as a matter of duty' to be a candidate for street commissioner. That's the best I've heard in a long time. When it was told me I had to put both hands to my head to see if my hat was on straight.

"I wonder why the Orpheum paid such a big price for one week of Harry Lauder when they might get Pat Kennedy to do his side-splitting sketch entitled, 'I am a perennial candidate for public office because it is my duty to the people.' When P. J. plays his engagement at the People's Theatre on December 15 I'll be disappointed if they don't give him the hook for springing such mossy old gags.

"Then there is Milton Paige. He's going to be the Republican candidate. Milton isn't quite sure whether he lives in South Boston with his brother or in his old New Hampshire home in Manchester. I intend to tell the people of Boston just how much interest he has in the city, and how much more he has elsewhere. This much is a dead sure fact: Paige hasn't got a dog's chance of being elected, and if the Democrats hog the three places on the board the Republican machine will have the street commission legislated out of existence.

Neglected Neighborhoods.

"You know, I have said that down in the neighborhood where Mayor Hibbard and ex-Mayor Fitzgerald live, the streets are so well cared for that they can be cleaned daily with a feather duster, while down in my section of Dorchester people, at certain seasons of the year, can hide in the weeds in the middle of the streets and baffle capture by the police and newspaper men.

"One thing let me say in all seriousness. If I am elected street commissioner I will do my best to have people living in the poorer sections treated as fairly as those living in the nicest residential sections. I believe in building up the poorer sections.

"I heartily indorse the sentiment of President Eliot of Harvard College that the old city laborers should be cared for by the city, and, whether elected street commissioner or not, I will do what I can to bring about that greatly desired act of justice.

"I was born in Boston, have lived here all my life, honestly earned all the money I have, pay my taxes promptly, and have always been interested in public improvements. I don't want the office of Street Commissioner for the money that's in it, but to fight for a square deal in street improvements. And everybody knows that Con Desmond is a fighter from start to finish."

Many of Mr. Desmond's old friends in South Boston, Charlestown and Dorchester are taking great interest in his campaign for the street commissionership.

Following is the list of candidates for Independence League nominations for Aldermen:

First District—William Joseph Melendy.
Second District—Henry E. Waldstein.
Third District—Jeremiah F. Kelleher.
Fourth District—Charles F. Berry.
Fifth District—Parnag Adam Adamian.
Sixth District—John M. Pease.
Seventh District (vote for two)—James F. Casey and Dawson Cole.
Eighth District (vote for two)—Robert T. Allen and Albert W. Whitridge.
Ninth District—Thomas F. Phelan.
Tenth District—Leroy T. Gardner.
Eleventh District—John H. Elliott.

LAURIE FETES BOSTON MEN AT STATE DINNER

The delegation from the Boston Merchants' Association which went to Ottawa on Monday to invite Sir Wilfred Laurier to visit Boston as guest of the association returned to Boston to-day.

It was composed of James J. Storrow, Francis Peabody, Jr., John Candler Cobb and Ryerson Ritchie.

The trip was made as a part of the association's efforts to promote closer trade relations. Sir Wilfred and his cabinet received the party by appointmnet yesterday noon. Mr. Storrow on behalf of the association expressed pleasure at the efforts of Canada to extend commerce and of the desire of the association and of New England to establish the friendliest trade relations.

The Premier stated that there is no city that it would give him so much pleasure to visit as Boston, but that the fatigue of his recent campaign and the added labors that the convening of Parliament would entail would not permit him to accept until the latter had adjourned. The Boston party was tendered a luncheon by Sir Wilfred, at which Hon. Richard W. Scott, Secretary of State; Hon. Sir Fred W. Borden, Minister of Militia and Defence; Hon. William S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, and several members of Parliament were present.

CANDY AND CIGARS WITH COFFEE SALES

"The man who broke the high prices of teas and coffees in Boston" to-day at his store, Importers' Branch, Limited, at No. 17 Washington street, distributed free over $1,000 worth of fine cigars and candy.

The distribution marked the opening of the new store. All women who bought twenty-five cents' worth of tea or a pound of the firm's celebrated eighteen-cent coffee were presented with a pound box of fancy chocolates. Each man buying tea or coffee was given a box of fine cigars.

As the owner of the store says: "We know that everyone trying our goods will become a steady customer and we are willing to pay for having you test our goods."

CLERGY SPLIT ON NEW FAITH CURE METHODS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The interest of the clergymen of this city, as well as the medical profession, continues to be focused upon the methods and results of the Emmanuel movement, which has been transplanted from Boston through the efforts of the Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester.

Dr. Worcester has the active assistance of the Rev. Dr. Loring W. Batten, rector of St. Mary's Church, where Sunday night services for the promulgation of the doctrine to cure nervous disorders will be continued through the Winter season.

It has been learned—a fact not generally known—that Dr. Worcester is a pupil of Wundt, the great European psychologist, having spent four years in deep study under the scientist before entering upon his work two years ago in Boston.

The Emmanuel movement has not escaped criticism here. Several prominent clergymen declared their views on the subject.

They were the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian Church, No. 245 Fourth avenue; the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, West Fifty-seventh street, and the Rev. Dr. T. Wucher, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul's Roman Catholic Church, West Twenty-third street.

On the other hand, following the criticism of these well-known clergymen on the movement, the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, Fifth avenue and Tenth street, comes out with an expression of hearty approval of the purposes, methods and results of Dr. Worcester's movement.

"I heartily approve of the Emmanuel movement as conducted by Dr. Worcester," he said. "It is bound to grow in this city, as it has grown so tremendously in Boston. Once the public are interested, and they are, from all appearances, the movement will spread, and great and good results will accrue.

"There are two points in the movement which I think should be made clear. The movement is not an attempt of clergymen to usurp the field of the physician. It is essentially a movement for co-operation."

Since Dr. Batten has opened his clinic in the church house, No. 232 East Eleventh street, in the rear of St. Mark's, he has been besieged by visitors, noticeably so since Dr. Worcester made his formal inaugural address Sunday night.

NEWS OF LABOR.

Sheet Metal Workers No. 17 have decided on semi-monthly meetings in the future in place of meeting every week. The proposed $4 a day wage scale was not taken up, but will be considered at the next meeting. Business Agent John J. Kennedy was instructed to watch the installation of the new metal furnishings in the new Art Museum and State House, as the Sheet Metal Workers were given jurisdiction over this work by the American Federation of Labor some time ago. General New England Organizer John J. Hynes begins his official duties to-morrow. hTe initiation fee, which was reduced to $10 last month, will remain at that figure for two weeks more.

NOTES.

Painters No. 11 received reports from their ball committee at last night's session of the sale of over 600 tickets. After the meeting the committee worked until 2 o'clock in the morning on the check list. Business Agent Cashman reported that several grievances had been straightened out during the past week. Several sick benefits were paid and a number of new members admitted.

Business Agent Thomas L. Pratt of Plumbers No. 12 was unanimously renominated at last night's meeting and Daniel F. Coogan was elected assistant business agent for three months. The following officers were nominated to serve for the ensuing year: President, Daniel Gardner and B. W. Hayes; vice-president, J. J. Cummings and Daniel Williams; financial secretary, Thomas L. Pratt; recording secretary, D. J. Mooney; treasurer, John Hall; sergeant-at-arms, M. S. Finn; for vacancies in the executive board, John Bannagan, Edward Minton and P. J. Donaghue; finance committee, Joseph Byers and James McCarthy.

The Frank K. Foster benefit committee held a short session last night at Wells Memorial building. Several new donations were reported and a large number of the tickets for the benefit entertainment at the Columbia Theatre December 3 given out.

PLOT TO KILL LAWYER NIPPED

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Suspected of conspiring to assassinate Harford Marshall, an Assistant District Attorney of New York County, four Greeks, three of whom were armed with a revolver, dirk and razor, were arrested in the corridor of the Criminal Court building.

Broughton Brandenberg, the writer, who was himself in court to answer to a charge of larceny growing out of the publication of an article said to have been written by Grover Cleveland, caused their arrest. Brandenberg was passing through the corridor when he overheard one of them say in the Greek language: "I'll give him the knife; you give him the gun."

Mr. Marshall is a former football player of some note and an athlete.

GERMANS SEE FREE RULE IN KAISER'S BOW

Special Cable to Boston American.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The Kaiser's promise to conform himself to constitutional methods of conducting the policies of Germany and not to act except through the Chancellor and his associate Ministers is looked upon throughout the empire as a great step toward free government.

The imperial report of the interview between Emperor William and Prince von Buelow reads:

"During the audience granted to the Imperial Chancellor, His Majesty the Emperor and King listened for several hours to a report by Prince von Buelow.

"The Imperial Chancellor described the feeling and its causes among the German people in connection with the article published in the London Daily Telegraph. He also explained the position he had taken during the course of the debates and interpellations on this subject in the Reichstag.

"His Majesty the Emperor received the statements and explanations with great earnestness, and then expressed his will as follows:

"Heedless of the exaggerations of public criticism, which are regarded by him as incorrect, His Majesty perceives that his principal imperial task is to insure the stability of the policy of the empire under the guardianship of the constitutional responsibilities. In conformity therewith His Majesty the Emperor approves the Chancellor's utterances in the Reichstag and assures Prince von Buelow of his continued confidence."

Mutual goodwill prevailed at the audience and the Emperor displayed a marked degree of condescension, and, unquestionably, had been greatly moved by the occurrences of recent days. The Chancellor declared that his general position was contained in the manifesto of the Conservative party, which represents the most loyal section of the German people, issued on November 6.

This declaration expressed serious concern "that not infrequently the utterances of His Majesty bring our foreign politics into a difficult situation," and added; "In order that the Emperor's reputation may be preserved from criticism and discussion and the German empire and people from complications and harm, we express the reverential wish that greater reserve be displayed in future in making such utterances."

The Chancellor alluded to the conviction long held by the advisers of the Crown, and steadily growing among the people, that the Sovereign ought invariably to rule through his chief Councillors, who could be held responsible in a different manner than the Emperor, and that independent action should end.

The Emperor accepted Prince von Buelow's view fully and agreed to the publication of assurances to this effect.

AVERT PANIC AT TENEMENT FIRE

A panic was narrowly averted among the tenants of No. 72 Endicott street early to-day by the timely arrival of Sergeant Donovan and Patrolman Nixon and Murphy of Division 1. The officers happened to pass the house and discovered smoke issuing from the basement. Investigating they found that a fire had started behind some barrels of excelsior which has been stored there and they immediately notified Engine 8.

Almost simultaneously the tenants of the crowded tenements upstairs smelled the smoke coming up the stairway. They tumbled out of bed and ran terrified out into the hallways in their night clothes and started for the street.

They were met on the stairs by the policemen who succeeded in convincing them that they were in no danger.

The fire was soon extinguished before it had gained much headway and the damage was slight.

MORE DEMAND FOR SEAMEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The International Seamen's Union reports that there will be an increased demand for seamen as the result of orders which has been received by lake shipbuilders for large boats for the Great Lakes. The boats ordered are all freighters except one, a steamer for the Lake Michigan trade. The union's announcement says:

"The Manitowoc Dry Dock Company will build a steamer for the Indiana Transportation Company, which operates the steamer Theodore Roosevelt. The contract calls for her delivery by May 15, 1909, and the price is said to be $175,000. She will be the first boat built in Manitowoc. The steamer will be 214 feet long and will be equipped with the most recent improvements. The American Shipbuilding Company is building two 600-foot steamers for the Pittsburg Steamship Company in Lorain, and the Great Lakes Engineering Works in Detroit have orders for two 8,000-ton steamers for Boland & Cornelius of Buffalo."

HINDOO SAM DOES TRICKS AT THE GARDEN

Beginning to-day Hindoo Sam, renowned wherever black art and East Indian jugglery is appreciated, will be a part of the great Moving Picture Show at the Winter Garden.

Hindoo Sam eats fire and stabs a wicker basket containing a curly haired Hindoo boy with a long, wicked looking sword and does innumerable Oriental turns.

Hindoo Sam will do his extraordinary stunts in connection with the Picture Show.

Carpenters and electricians by the score are still working day and night in the Garden getting ready the remaining booths and amusement enterprises. The managers all agree that the Winter Garden is just what Boston wants, and they see great possibilities.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN each Sunday gives tickets worth thirty cents or more at the attractions. Thousands of SUNDAY AMERICAN ticket holders found their way into the Winter Garden Monday and Tuesday.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the Prize Beauty Contest to be run by the Winter Garden Company. A number of masked and mantled judges will preside and the candidates will each be given a ticket entitling them to be photographed at Conlin's studio, the photographs to assist in the final judgement. Blondes will be first considered. The second contest will be for brunnettes. Fair candidates with red or titian hair will be classed with the blondes and announcements covering all details are megaphoned about the garden from hour to hour.

The Dare-Devil act of Oscar Babcock in Looping the Death-Trap and Jumping the Gap on his wheel fills the garden every afternoon and evening. Babcock is the only man in the country who has mastered the act and lived, several riders being killed by the very apparatus he now uses. The bicycle run is seventy-five feet high, the death-trap springs in two-fifths of a second, the loop is twenty-five feet high and the gap twenty-five broad. Death lurks in every plank, bolt, spring and serpentine twist of the loop and gap and the whole trip is made in the space of two seconds and a half.

Order next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN for the free tickets to the Winter Garden.

NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE MAGNATES IN SESSION

Magnates of the New England League gathered at the United States Hotel today for their annual meeting. There were no rows to be settled, but everybody brought a bucket of salve to be used in case anything broke loose.

The big thing of the meeting was the appointing of the schedule committee, and the delegates began to play politics as soon as they arrived. The committee consists of five members, and there was great wire-pulling on the part of the magnates to get the appointment. [illegible] Nationals dropped in to pay his respects with a box of cigars which he passed around. Percy Houston, former manager of the Brooklyn club and a president of the New England League, was a guest at the meeting.

President Murnane was in the chair and Secretary Morse read the minutes of the meeting. The clubs were represented as follows:

Worcester—Jesse Burkett and John O'Donnell; Fall River—President Torpey and Manager John O'Brien; Brockton—Manager Steve Flanagan; New Bedford—President James Smith; Haverhill—President Rich; Lowell—President Albert Winn; Lynn—President Matt McCann and Manager Frank Leonard; Lawrence—President Edward Arundel and Manager [illegible].

PAPKE SURELY GOT EVEN WITH OLD RIVAL

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—"Nothing succeeds like success," sayeth a flip proverb to which might be added, "and confidence is the keynote of success."

And my, what a confident personage that cobby little fellow, Billy Papke, of Spring Valley, Ill., is to be sure. Ordinarily a modest lad he becomes gradually worked up when recalling his experiences with Stanley Ketchel of Grand Rapids, and then he tells you all about it.

I watched him strut the mat in Shannon's gymnasium the other day, recalling the blows that he struck Ketchel and that Ketchel dealt him in the fights at Milwaukee and Los Angeles. His eyes snapped and his face flushed as he hooked and blocked with the Ketchel of his recollection. He was just a wee bit vainglorious and may be bitter as he described the telling points of the Los Angeles battle, and informed us how he hissed the words "How do you like it, Ketchel?" with every stinging punch he placed on the bruised face of the staggering Michigander.

But that's the religion of the prize ring. Be sure of your man while the fight is on. Be generous after you have vanquished him. And in Papke's case, above many others, there was justification for the revengeful feeling displayed while battering Ketchel into defeat. Back yonder in the Middle West Papke was almost a demigod when Ketchel came to Milwaukee. And Ketchel, getting started aright, made a punching bag of poor Papke and caused the galleryites to wax sarcastic over the poor stand made by the Spring Valley nugget.

"What's become of the Illinois Thunderbolt?" shouted one leathern-lunged sneerer and poor Billy heard and winced as much as he did when Ketchel swung on him.

Then there was the altered attitude of the sports who are always ready to turn to strange gods. They made a hero of Ketchel around Milwaukee and they listened in a bored way to Papke's excuses. According to the message sent over the wires by Joe O'Connor they "washed Ketchel's feet in champagne and wiped them with hundred dollar bills."

It isn't in human nature to think of these things pleasantly, and one might forgive Papke for saying "How do you like it, Ketchel?" at Los Angeles, as also for bending down and remarking, "And how do you like it, Mr. O'Connor?" after he had knocked Ketchel through the ropes and into his manager's lap.

Papke Will Repeat, He Says.

Papke is superbly confident that he will repeat the Los Angeles performance when he meets Ketchel at the Coliseum on Thanksgiving eve. He says that Ketchel was only dangerous at Milwaukee and never since.

"It was simply a case of solving his style. Now unless he has learned a bunch of new tricks I know him like a book," said Billy. "In the Milwaukee fight he caught me a hard one early in the game. He had scarcely dropped my hand after the shake when he let go and I got his right on the jaw. It was seconds ere I could see. Then I fought the wrong way for the balance of the contest. Ketchel is a swinger and he must have plenty of room to work. I played right into his hands by stepping away when he let fly and he stepped after me and landed frequently. I figured it all out and I acted differently at Los Angeles. Instead of backing I stepped towards him and his blows spent their force behind me. I had him sized up to a nicety, as the result told, and he is mine now every time we meet."

Ketchel thinks differently. He says it was carelessness or overconfidence that did for him at Los Angeles, and that he will have an eye for an eye when he gets Papke into a ring on the night of November 25.

"Papke boxed differently at that," said Stanley. "At Milwaukee he was given to swinging and I was watching for his head. If I had tried a swing I would have knocked his head off. He danced around a while and then suddenly jumped in and let go a short, straight right for the face. It caught me between the eyes and I was never any good during the rounds that followed."

Papke, by the way, says it was a left hook that started Ketchel on the down trail, but that's the difference. A fight isn't won with the punches that are past. Ketchel says: "I am going to fight as I never fought before this time," and there he stops short. He isn't divulging his scheme of battle. He leaves us to infer that the Papke triumph at Los Angeles gave him a big insight into the Papke methods just as the Milwaukee affair posted Papke as to the best manner of storming the Ketchel breastworks. He is as determined as Papke and equally as confident, seemingly.

Joe O'Connor, manager of Ketchel, has not lost faith in his man. Joe doesn't try to explain the Los Angeles happening. He calls it an "unaccountable accident," and holds that of the many who were genuinely surprised none was more so than Papke himself.

"The fellow couldn't believe his eyes," said Joe. "No better proof is required than the fact that he wouldn't go within two feet of Stanley when the poor fellow was reeling and helpless. He actually waited for Ketchel to fall from exhaustion."

From which it will be seen that whatever the nature of the aftermath may be, the preliminary prattle of the Ketchel-Papke match is more than lively.

"I am going to bet a couple of thousand dollars on Ketchel," said O'Connor. "I tried hard to do so at Los Angeles but I had a funny experience. After the fight the man I had given the money to came to me and said he had only managed to place $40. He returned me $1,960, and yet they'll try to make a fellow believe that some people expected Papke to win."

Packy and Bat.

Times change and pugilists, like other men, change with them. Battling Nelson and Packy McFarland have had a spat and the Battler called Packy a "bum fighter," asked him who he had ever licked and told him to go and get a reputation.

Under the circumstances it may be mean to recall what Nelson said of Packy a short year ago, or to be correct, fourteen months ago. It was just after Britt had won from Nelson at the Auditorium and the durable Dane had excused himself on the

THOMAS WILL MEET BURKE IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Joe Thomas, the California middleweight, will make his first appearance in a New York ring on Friday night, when he meets Sailor Burke in a six-round battle at the Fairmont Athletic Club. Thomas has been working at Stratford, Ct., and is in tip-top condition to fight his way back to the topmost rung of boxing fame. He says he will dispose of Burke as speedily and easily as Billy Papke did.

The contest at the Bronx Club on Friday should be fast as long as it lasts. It will be a slasher from bell to bell. Thomas is a speedy fighter and he will carry the battle to the Brooklyn boy.

NOTED STALLION IS DEAD AT LEXINGTON

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 18.—The noted twelve-year-old thoroughbred stallion Jean Beraud, by His Highness, out of Carrie C., by Sensation, owned by Thomas F. Dolan of this city, is dead of acute indigestion at William Steele's Horse Haven Farm. Jean Beraud was bred in the Holmdel stud in New Jersey, and was a great race horse. In his three seasons on the turf he won several stakes and $84,490. Among the races he won was the great Trial, Withers, Eclipse, Great American, Double Event and National Stallion Stakes and Brooklyn Handicap. He was the sire of several good race horses. He was insured for $2,000.

Poor Decision at Armory A. A. Bouts by the Referee

YOUNG ERNE GETS RAW DEAL

Young Erne, the clever Quaker boxer, outpointed Eddie Murphy in the best bout on the star ten-round card at the Armory A. A., but the most he could get for his work was a draw. It was a rank injustice to deny a visitor who clearly won the award. While the big part of the house would have been glad to have seen the local lad win, they were aware he had no chance with the more experienced opponent and the announcement of a draw was greeted with hisses.

It was Murphy's first appearance in a feature bout, and he could not have tackled much harder game than a lad like Erne, who had Murphy beat on everything but boxing and gameness.

The Quaker was travelling at his best gait and easily proved that he knew far more than Murphy about the fine points of the game, even if he was a bit out of condition.

Erne Blinds Murphy.

He slashed Murphy till he had him almost blind, one eye being completely closed and his face flecked with blood from the constant tapping received on the nose and mouth.

But Murphy was game. No matter how often or how hard Erne shot his left over, Murphy was back again forcing his way inside and driving Erne to exchange with him, at which style he excelled even the more experienced master.

Erne was lightning fast in action, playing all around Murphy and snapping stiff lefts into his face, and his covering up tactics were remarkable, saving himself a lot of trouble by stopping Murphy's blows on his arms.

Murphy did effective work in uppercutting and hooking with his left to the head. His lack of experience was too big a handicap against a fox like Erne, who kept on top from the outset.

Eddie Reilly of South Boston won a close decision over George Decker of Philadelphia in ten rounds. Both boys were evenly matched, but Decker was used to a shorter distance, and Reilly kept coming stronger the farther the bout went.

He clipped Decker several hard lefts to the side of the head, which sent him off his balance, but Decker handed out some hard body punishment by forcing his way in close.

Temple Gets to Walcott.

It was a meeting of former dusky stars when Larry Temple and Joe Walcott, who once wore the welterweight championship title, faced each other and they tried to bring their former cleverness and hitting powers into action.

Temple was there all right with his haymaker, but he did not land it till the last minute in the tenth and last round, and the Black Demon lost by a knockout, though it came in the eleventh hour of the bout.

It was the first time Hub fans had seen the former pride of many ring battles go down to defeat by the k. o. route, and he was not into dreamland entirely, but was so far gone that he would have been easy for Temple to finish up.

There remained less than a minute of the tenth and last round when Temple, who cut loose, fastened on a right cross to Walcott's jaw and sent him down for the full count. Walcott staggered to his feet and backed to the ropes defenceless, and was an easy mark for Temple, who measured him and shot over a right and left plumb on the jaw, and Walcott tumbled into the ropes and on to the mat, with Temple the victor.

Victor Looked in Shape.

Temple was in perfect shape for any kind of a mill contest, while Walcott looked too fleshy around the belt line, which was a target for Temple, but Joe kept pretty well covered up on the tender spot and Temple gave his attention to stabbing Joe's head with his long left. Walcott tried to get in close to slam over his famous left hook, but could not get the proper range and his right was of little use from an oldtime shooting accident and Temple was too shifty in action.

It was not the same Walcott of old by many miles, and few thought that he would last the distance.

Temple showed spasms of lightning work. Once he slipped down in a pinwheel, and before Walcott could get out of his reach landed a left swing which would have put a white man out of business, but hardly disturbed Walcott's tough cranium.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

From reports sent out about the Driscoll-Baldwin bout in New York, it would appear as if Baldwin had all the better of the weight of the argument. He was said to be fully ten pounds heavier than the little Englishman.

If Moran and his English rival, Driscoll, continue to question the right of each other to be called England's featherweight champion, why not let them get into the ring and settle the point. Then we on this side of the Atlantic can judge for ourselves who is the right holder of the title.

Tim Callahan, one of the best lightweights, is anxious to get on a bout with Fred Buckland of England. Tim says that he will make 133 pounds for Buckland at the ring side, and if there is any one in the boxing business that Tim dearly loves to lick it is an Englishman.

Jimmy Devine, one of the gamest and hardest-hitting little fellows that ever pulled on a glove, is about to re-enter the ring. Jimmy fears none of them, and he says that he can hit as hard as ever, so it looks as if many of the so-styled champions will give Jimmy the cold stare.

Tommy Langdon, the Rittenhouse scrapper, is after a match with Frankie Neil of Frisco.

Now that the Mayor and District Attorney of Pittsburg have sanctioned the holding of six-round bouts in that city, three clubs have already organized for the purpose of holding weekly stags of six rounds' duration. Johnny Oliver, manager of Tommy Murphy, received an offer from the club there, the National A. C., for Tommy to meet Jimmy Dunn of New Castle, Pa., two weeks after his contest with McFarland.

Harry Mansfield, the clever English middleweight, and Charley Hitte, the Albany fighter, have been matched for another six-round bout which will be fought at one of the clubs just outside of Albany, N. Y., on Friday night.

CAN'T HIDE MURPHY.

President Murphy of the Chicago Cubs continues to keep in the limelight. He now says that he intends to buy a plantation in Cuba and may have the world's champions spend part of their training trip in Havana next Spring. Murphy has all the other baseball magnates beaten when it comes to talking Winter baseball.

HORSE NEWS TRACK GOSSIP

Midnight (2.12¼), who is to be sold this week, would go to a locality where he can have some good mares. Nature cut him out for a great sire as well as trotter.

[illegible], a native of Maine, but for several years at Maplewood Stock Farm, Roadstown, N. J., has decided to locate in Winston-Salem, N. C., this Winter.

The trotting stallion Claymont, a full brother of [illegible] 2.04¼, recently reduced his record to 2.14.

[illegible] blood of Axworthy with that of McKinney should produce both early and extreme speed.

That good things can occasionally be picked up cheap is evidenced by the fact that Red Bow, 2.04¼, once sold for $80.

The unbeaten colt, The Harvester (3), 2.08¾, has never made a break in any of his races.

The Wilkes-Electioneer-Nutwood combination of blood lines is increasing in popularity every year.

Maggie Yeazer, carrying Walnut Hall, 2.08¼, in utero, cost the proprietor of Walnut Hill Farm $166. She was bought for him by the noted trainer and author, John Splan.

The Understudy, a filly that Trainer Proctor of The Leading Lady (3), 2.07, and Uhlan, 2.07½ fame, will train and race in the three-year-old futurities next year, is by Moko and from Miss Pratt, 2.17¼, dam of The Leading Lady.

Trotters and pacers that inherited the blood of Alma Mater have made a great showing the past season. Minor Heir, 1.59½, is one of them.

Eddie Switzer, who has had a successful season in Austria, was visiting friends around Boston last week.

SPORTING MISCELLANY

Whiteley, who has been touted as the coming intercollegiate half miler, will not wear a spiked shoe until next Spring. Al. Copeland, the Princeton trainer, who has had him in charge since he sprained his ankle last Spring, says he will be a big surprise when he starts running again.

Referring to the Olympic championship programme, James E. Sullivan says:

"Now, what in the world could be the object of making up such a programme? This is the first time in the history of sport that the arrangement of a programme was so mixed up that a sprinter could not enter both sprints, but had to choose one or the other or compete in the two events, which were so mixed up that he was placed at a disadvantage. They should have cleaned up the 100 metre race first, and then gone on to the 200 metre; any expert will tell you that it is very hard on a sprinter to keep him unstrung, as such a programme would have the effect of doing, and the American team lost a great deal of its strength by this arrangement. The programme of the British championships was differently arranged."

Speaking further on the same subject, he says:

"Those who have heretofore arranged athletic programmes, particularly programmes for important meetings and championship meetings in this country, Great Britain or any other country, have always made the programme in such a manner that the athletes were given a chance to compete in more than one event if they had the requisite ability to do so. On the seventh day of the games, as before stated, we find that at 3.30 p. m. they held four heats of the 800-metre race; at 4.45 p. m. they held twelve heats of the 400 metre hurdle race, and at 5.20 p. m., four more heats of the 800 metre flat race. I have no recollection of a half-mile race ever having been broken up in this manner."

Speaking of the 400-metre race, Mr. Sullivan said:

"This 400-metre race was the one race that was left to Great Britain. They felt they must surely win this race, having lost the 800-metre and 1,500-metre runs, and the public felt that they should win and ought to win with Lieutenant Halswelle. The attitude of one particular paper in London in predicting that a foul would be committed and making the false statement that Halswelle had been fouled at Athens inflamed the public and also the officials, who lost their heads and acted in a manner such as was never before witnessed on an athletic field."

MATTY MAY BE COACH.

It is said that Christy Mathewson may be engaged as coach of the Harvard University nine next year. Harvard has had some famous pitchers as coaches in years gone by, including John Clarkson, Tim Keefe, Charley Nichols and Jack Chesbro. As Mathewson always reports to the New Yorks in excellent physical trim, it is probable that McGraw will allow him to assume the task at Cambridge if the deal is consummated.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

As usual at this stage of the year the big bombast and [illegible] are beginning to give nourishment to the pencil pushers, and if that American Association-Eastern League shell of hop was not puffed at a few times things sure wouldn't be natural.

O'Brien, Powers & Co. will hold the big powwow up in the burg made famous by the Pan-American to-day, and guess there'll be lots of [illegible] in the outcome. They will consider the advisability of waging battle on the National Association.

The poor old slaving baseball magnate. He must weep with vexation when he listens to the news at the breakfast table and sees that only 40,000 applications have been made for the Harvard-Yale game.

With Harry Wolverton at the helm of Newark next season, we should sure see great games, and then some over the wrong side of the creek. Harry was the white-haired boy in the Tri-State League last season, steering the Williamsport team to commanding position.

Now that Hans Wagner has cast his lot with a one-night stand circus, let us suggest that he should look up Rube Waddell. Rube has a career that has Kid McCoy's stopped 'steen different ways for variety, but we cannot remember, after much heavy thinking, of him ever drawing his weekly insult as a clown.

If Waddell does hook up with Wagner, the diamond will sure be well represented on the "stoige," now that Joe Tinker, Harry Howell and Mique Donlin are doing full-fledged footlight stunts.

Backstop Rapp, another recruit McGraw has signed, is a regular Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde guy. On the diamond it's Rapp, but when he bucked the line on the University of Minnesota's gridiron team the program called him Capron. It may be that Capron's kicking ability was the cause of Jawn taking such a shine to him.

BOWLING NEWS AND NOTES

Captain Arthur Hatch of the Everetts, in the Elks' League, received his first serious setback of the season by dropping two points to Winthrop, making the Everetts now stand 13 points won and 3 lost. This does not mean that Hatch intends giving up the struggle for first honors, as he is a known fighter from the time of rolling the first ball till the end of the season.

Medford, in the Elks' League, has not lost a point this year, and in their match with Malden ran up a grand total of 1,418, five pins more than what won the highest three-string total last season. In the final string Medford connected for 495 pins.

There is a big difference in the Boston pins used by the Amateur Boston Pin League and the regulation candle pins in general use. Some experts claim the average with the Boston pin is surely ten more a string to each man, which means 150 more pins in every game.

Goodnow, captain of the Casinos in the Greater Boston League, was once secretary of the Westland race track and very popular with the horsemen. He is a crackajack bowler, besides keeping his men in prime order clear through the season. Casino is now second to Carruth in the league, only a couple of points back.

Medfords have three strong players in Green, Crowley and McKeon, with Ward ready to jump in for the close games. The three last named, too, represent Medford in the K. of C. League, leaders in the second division. Outside of the ones mentioned, however, Medford has three others capable of holding their own in hot company, Dr. Smith, Dr. Leahy and Webb Tyler.

To the crack Pilgrim team of South Boston belongs the honor of being the first team to take two strings from Carruth. And this on Carruth's alley, with a full house of rooters present, shows that this team, although new men to the league, is going to be there at the show-down.

Atkinson and Shawmut are running head and head in the Furniture League, each with 15 won and 5 lost, and only a single game back comes Pray, with Davenport just a game back of Pray. It is a very pretty struggle.

Captain Henry Barry of the Boston Elks' team has declared himself good and strong. He has it mapped out to take the scalps of Everett for four straight at their next meeting, and then, to even up matters, will down Medford to the same tune. Not to be shy in getting all that is coming, he is looking for a team total of fully 1,450 before the season ends.

Duck pins are the real Brockton game, but the shoemakers can slam the candle pins down, too, and although once in a while a champion like Quill comes to grief, they feel that at the small pin game they can uphold the city's reputation. So it is up to the Boston bowlers to get busy.

Tommy Boles had not bowled till last week for nearly a year, yet his average was 93 in the game against Everett. Tommy is now going right after the individual league prize for the Elks.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—The second play in the world's continuous pool championship between Thomas Hueston of St. Louis and Alfredo de Oro of Havana, Cuba, resulted in an easy victory for Hueston by a score of 211 to 165, the total score now standing Hueston 412, De Oro 332.

POLO results: At Pawtucket: Pawtucket 4, Providence 2. At New Britain: New Britain 6, Worcester 3.

EXETER, Nov. 18.—It is proposed to have an ice hockey team at Exeter Academy this winter, mainly for the first time in the history of the school.

FALL RIVER, Nov. 18.—Tom Longboat, the famous Indian Marathon runner, will give an exhibition here on Thanksgiving morning, running ten miles either against a relay team or against Frank Kanaly for the full distance.

BISHOP beat Franklin in the class B amateur billiard tournament at the Hub rooms by 11 buttons, 200 to 189. To-night Nerraw meets Bishop.

BOXING.

READING, Pa., Nov. 18.—Paddy Lavin, the Buffalo boy, proved too fast for Joseph Bonner of Summit Hill in their bout before the Reading A. C., winning in the sixth round with a hard swing to the body and a right to the jaw.

WILKESBARRE, Nov. 18.—Eddie Chambers of Philadelphia made Harry Jones of Chester quit in the fourth round at the Peerless A. C.

AT the Armory Club next Tuesday night Owen Moran, the English featherweight champion, will meet Frankie Neil of California in a 12-round bout. Tom Sawyer of Maine will meet Billy Rolfe of South Boston, and Tommy Rawson of East Boston goes against Young Clark of Lawrence, each bout eight rounds.

BASEBALL.

THE annual meeting of the New England League will be held to-day at the United States Hotel in this city. In Buffalo the American Association and the Eastern League will hold an important conference.

"BAD BILL" DAHLEN will not be the next manager of the Brooklyn club, if President George Dovey has a say in the matter. Dahlen is on the reserve list of the Boston Nationals, and President Dovey has made no effort to secure a new short stop.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18.—The sale of John Ganzel, formerly manager of the Cincinnati team, to the Rochester club of the Eastern League, has been settled. All that remains for the deal to become a fact is the signing up of a contract for Ganzel.

FOOTBALL.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 18.—Adrian Edward Regnier, '10, of Dorchester, Mass., has been elected captain of next year's varsity football team at Brown University. Regnier came here from Dorchester High School. At college he plays on the football, basketball and baseball teams and is now captain of the basketball team.

AMHERST, Nov. 18.—Amherst varsity was lined up against a scrub composed of the sophomore and freshman teams. Roberts, from Swarthmore, ineligible by the one-year rule, scored against them, with several tacklers hanging on.

AT Tufts' practice on the old campus special attention was given to outside kicks and forward passes. A. G. Hooper, the freshmen team halfback and second team quarterback, was given a chance as right halfback and showed up well. The closing game of the season will be played next Saturday with the Massachusetts Aggies.

PACKY NEVER FIGHTS TWO BATTLES ALIKE

BY TAD.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—"They can't find my weak spot, that's the reason of my success," said Packy McFarland, in speaking of his rapid rise to the front rank of lightweight pummellers.

"You know, if they can't find the weak link in the chain it's pretty strong, isn't it? Nobody ever had the dope on my fighting, because I never fought two fellows alike, and right now I'm as much of a mystery to them as I ever was. You see, with the tough ones I box and with the boxers I fight. I can go either way and I don't care who or what they are as long as I get over the first round.

"Charlie Neary was a great hitter, but I kept him on the jump all the time, and he was never in it. Leach Cross was another hitter, but he was a flatfoot fighter. I kept him on his heels all the way and he was like a kid.

"Jimmy Britt I knew was a boxer without a punch. I roughed him so hard that he was silly after four rounds and in the next I got him.

"Freddie Welsh was a boxer, too, but I made a mistake with him. I boxed him instead of roughing it.

"Will I box Murphy, or get in and slug with him? Oh, I'll get him. I don't think any more of him than I did of the rest. I'll box his noodle off. Say, I'll hang so many lefts on that long chin of his that it will look like a decorated Christmas tree. No, I don't think I'm blowing about it. I'm confident that I can beat these fellows and that's half the fight won.

"Old man Gilmore told me that as long as I kept myself in condition, let the booze and tobacco alone, that I was as good as any one of them. These old fellows know. They're past and gone as fighters, but they see where other men made mistakes and tell the younger fellows who will listen. If more young fellows listened to the old ones, instead of laughing at them, we'd have more first-class boxers you can bet.

"You know old man Gilmore, not Harry. I mean Harry's father, fought Jack McAuliffe the hardest go he ever had and that was back in 1888. They fought twenty-eight rounds on the turf, and they had to stop the go, it was so bloody. He knows the ropes as well as any of them, and he has tipped me off to a lot of good things."

"Stonewall Jackson" Kelly was around to see us today. He was nicked on the neck with a bullet a few weeks ago, but could talk about Bert Keyes today just as well as ever. James leaves for Savannah Thursday to take charge of Keyes, who meets Kid Sullivan there in a week or so.

* * *

They don't think so much of Stanley Ketchel out West now. He's on the short end in the betting with Papke this time and it looks now as though he'll be as high as 2 to 1. He was over trying to beat the ponies at Oakland last week, and they slipped him a swell trimming.

BOLTERS ARE AFTER NEW GROUNDS

In spite of the denial of Joseph D. O'Brien, president of the American Association, that his organization is not in favor of a baseball war, word comes from Chicago and Pittsburg that agents of the association have secured options on grounds for next season. In Pittsburg it is said that the American Association has signed an option on a valuable piece of ground near Craft avenue in the Oakland district, about half a mile from the new park secured by Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburg Nationals a few weeks ago. It is further stated that an attempt will be made to interest a number of Pittsburg men in the venture. In Chicago it is stated that James Callahan stands ready to head an association team there, and that he will aid the invaders in finding a suitable plant. It was hinted some time ago that the association men intended to put new clubs in these cities, also in Cincinnati, so that the stories of options are of particular interest just now. President O'Brien has set forth at length his reasons why the American Association has taken its present belligerent stand. He says:

"The insurgents are not anxious for war, and want to patch things up if they can. Still they are firm in their demands for what they believe to be a more equitable division of power in the councils of the national association. My league alone represents $500,000 in investments. Yet the vote of the league in the national association meeting is cancelled by some little fly-by-night organization that has not 1 per cent. of that sum all told. At the Chicago meeting two leagues were allowed to vote which had not paid their assessments and are practically bankrupt. We feel that our property interests demand a better representation than that. We have been asking for justice for four years, yet always run up against the same excuse. In private conversation the little fellows say they are willing to meet us half way, but when we ask for a vote on some reasonable question we are usually beaten in an overwhelming manner. Men who have not a single cent invested in baseball denounce and outvote those who have hundreds of thousands of dollars tied up in baseball plants. Such a state of affairs could not exist in any other line of business. We want a square deal, and if we are denied we will go it alone and do the best we can."

P. T. Powers, who says he is for peace, is in an awkward position. If the minor leaguers turn down the American Association and the Eastern League Powers will probably be forced to give up the presidency of the national association. He is also president of the Eastern League and will doubtless stick to that organization. James A. Hart of Chicago has already been named as Powers' successor as the leader of the minor league association.

GYM BAGLEY TO REFEREE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The third man in the ring at the finish of the wrestling contest between Tom Jenkins and Youssiff Mahmout, which will take place at Madison Square Garden Thanksgiving night, will be Gym Bagley, who has judged many of the important events in this city. At a meeting held to select this official a suggestion was made that the rules regarding the falls be changed from "pin falls to flying fall."

Jenkins wanted this alteration made, as he feels confident that he is a much superior wrestler than the Turk, and at the same time is not so sure that his strength will prevail against the enormous muscles of the Sultan's subject. After a long wrangle, however, it was decided to let the match stand as it is.

YANKS TO GO TO MACON TO TRAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Secretary Abe Mahon of the New York American League baseball team announced last night that it had been decided to have the members of the team do their Spring training at Macon, Ga.

Manager Stallings will take a big stable of players South, President Frank Farrell's liberality in regard to expenses making this possible. Farrell is sparing no reasonable expense to put a pennant-winning team up at American League Park next season. With the material he has Stallings believes this can be done and will bend every effort toward bringing it about. The New York fan is already doping out a championship team from the men Stallings is known to have.

FOOTBALL AT THE ORPHEUM THEATRE

An innovation in vaudeville is to be given at the Orpheum Theatre on Saturday afternoon when, by means of a unique gridiron and an expert football player, every move of the ball in the great Harvard-Yale game will be reproduced for the benefit of the audience. This has been arranged so as not to interfere with the regular vaudeville performance, and yet it will keep the audience constantly informed of the plays and the score.

Poor Tools And A Good Worker

That Is What Makes Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Taste, Foul Breath and Catarrh.

The stomach is a good, strong, vital organ, which is constantly protecting and feeding every other organ of the body.

It is the most abused, neglected and scorned member of man also. Most men abuse their stomach with undercooked food, high living, alcohol, tobacco, pastries and scores of other unhealthy practices.

When the stomach at last sickens of all this abuse and cannot do its full duty, most men are not warned, but keep up their assaults on the stomach until at last it rebels and begins to strike back and cry for help. Man by his own abuse has taken away from the stomach the tools to work with.

These tools are the gastric juices which go to make up the digestive agents. From 7 to 35 lbs. of gastric juice are turned into the stomach every day.

When poor, poisonous food consumes this juice, dilutes it, robs it of its strength and throws it, a fermented mass, from the system, of course there is just that much of the gastric fluid which cannot be readily supplied by the blood.

When food comes into a stomach filled with depleted fluids lacking of power to do their part, the good strong stomach is using poor tools and, of course, cannot succeed in its work.

A condition which often prevails is that which takes place when the gastric juice contains too much alkali. If the juice were wholly alkaline it would not only devour and digest the fluid but would eat and digest the stomach itself. Such gastric fluid does the digestion no good and attacks the walls of the stomach, making them raw and sore and setting up inflammation and irritation.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will strengthen a stomach filled with poor gastric juice. They will remove any abnormal alkaline condition, allay irritation, sweeten the breath, remove catarrhal conditions and digest food no matter how the stomach has acted before.

These little tablets contain an ingredient, one grain of which will digest perfectly 3,000 grains of food. They will digest an entire meal placed in a jar without the aid of any other force except themselves. They have demonstrated this time after time.

Every druggist carries them in stock; price 50c, and 40,000 physicians use them in their practice. Send us your name and address and we will mail you at once a trial package free. Address, F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

YALE WILL PERFECT NEW PLAYS NOW

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 18.—Orders to begin scrimmaging for the Harvard game to-day were given by Head Coach Biglow of the Yale team this morning. Biglow says that the varsity has not made the best plays work effectively all the year, and that they have two days left to get together in before practice stops for the Harvard match.

To-day was the first actual football since the Princeton clash, and Biglow told the regulars to be ready for a lively twenty-five-minute half. The freshmen and the scrubs were together ordered against them, but the freshmen were planned to get the brunt of the attack. The varsity lineup, as played to-day, was as follows:

FOOTBALL BITS OF NEWS

The West Point team is not in the least discouraged by the poor showing made by the team against Washington and Jefferson, according to the reports from the military camp.

One of the most welcome pieces of news that has reached the Harvard supporters this season was of Captain Burr's return to the Crimson gridiron. So fast is he rounding into shape that it can almost be stated positively that he will be seen in the battle against the Blue Saturday.

Captain and Quarterback Keinath is the only Penn player that was injured in the game against Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday. The Slowtown leader has a dislocated shoulder, and the chances are that he won't be able to get into the Cornell contest Thanksgiving day.

The coaches would not allow the Yale freshman team to break training after their defeat by Harvard Saturday, but will keep the youngsters for the varsity to practice against this week.

Thirty-six specials, eight more than ever before in the history of the games between the two big universities, will be run to New Haven for the Harvard-Yale game Saturday.

In the opinion of Coach Yost of the Michigan team, the Pennsylvania eleven is the best in the country.

Trainer Bowler of the Dartmouth eleven, which was beaten last Saturday by Harvard in probably the most closely contested game that has taken place on the gridiron this season between big college teams, declares that the Crimson eleven is the strongest that has represented the Cambridge University since 1901, and he expects them to beat Yale. Bankert, the big right guard, is also of the opinion that the Crimson will wave triumphant over the Blue this season.

Head Coach Metzer of the Penn eleven is confident that his men will down Cornell on "Turkey day," and thus make a clean slate for his team for the season.

In regard to records for the season, the Harvard and Yale teams are rather evenly matched. The Crimson has been tied once—by the Navy—while the Bulldog has been tied by the Brown team.

HARVARD SENDS BIG MONEY TO NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 18.—Signs of greater confidence in their eleven than since 1901 are visible in New Haven on the part of Harvard men. A wave of Harvard betting has extended even to this city, and every dollar of even money that Yale can muster has been covered from Harvard since yesterday noon.

Harvard men sent word here yesterday that they would take up every cent a certain bunch of Yale students and professional gamblers wished to raise here and before night Yale men who found the sun of fortune shining at the Princeton game had pooled $1,200 for a Yale-Harvard stake. A telegram that this was raised was immediately sent to Harvard and to-day a Harvard certified check was received here to cover the wager. It was cashed and the money of both sets of undergraduates was placed in a New Haven safe in the custody of a responsible stakeholder here.

Record for Small Bets.

More small bets have been recorded for the Yale-Harvard game than have been known on any similar match in this city in many seasons. The betting is brisk and continuous, and the sums laid are large.

Despite notes of warning sounded by Captain Burch and Head Coach Biglow that Yale must play better than she did in the Princeton game, and that she can be saved by no second half rally, Yale men have been winning purses all the year when their team has been saved by a final rally after the tide had apparently set against her, and they are taking some of the cash already secured to plunge against Harvard.

There is not a large university contingent which plunges on the big games, but just now it is at its busiest. Rarely is Harvard willing to cover all the Yale money in sight at even terms, but she is just tripping over her own feet to get at the Yale pools and smother them before the odds go up.

The betting will go on in sweepstakes fashion, apparently, till all the Yale money is exhausted. There seems to be no bottom to the Harvard desire of material for betting.

Behind the cold gamblers' odds there must be a basis for the Harvard confidence. It is such a betting wave that cleared from the cloth all the Yale money in evidence two or three days before the Yale-Harvard regatta at New London last June. It is the same freshet that strikes Yale just before a Yale-Harvard baseball game, although Yale baseball backers have become as timorous as partridges in the open season and take to the heavy underbrush when they hear the first crack of the Harvard betting hunter.

'THE FIGHTING HOPE'

A gripping, fascinating novel of up-to-the-hour metropolitan life, based on the powerful American drama by William J. Hurlbut.

By BLANCHE BATES.

Synopsis

AFTER a sensational trial Robert Granger, cashier of the Gotham Trust Company, has been convicted of overcertifying a check for $[illegible], drawn by Cornelius Brady, and causing a failure of the company. The public, which lost heavily in the failure, believes Burton Temple, president of the company, is really guilty.

Temple, anxious to right himself before the world, is advised by his lawyer, Craven, to get hold of Brady's private papers in search of documents that will prove Temple innocent. He hires Detective Cane to undertake the task of getting the papers.

In the midst of Temple's fight his private secretary, Miss Graham, resigns on a plea of illness, and tells him she has found for him a capable substitute, Miss Anna Dale.

While they discuss the matter Miss Dale arrives. She is really Mrs. Robert Granger, and has sought the position under an assumed name, in the hope of finding evidence that will prove her husband innocent and remove the stain from his name for the sake of their two little sons.

Believing Granger made a deal with Brady and profited by it, Temple instructs his detective to seek evidence of any investments made by Granger, or of any unusual expenditure, especially on some woman.

Before Miss Dale has been long in Temple's employ he has fallen deeply in love with her, and, though she is not aware of it, she is falling in love with him.

CHAPTER IX.

More Light on Granger

CRAVEN, ordinarily the cool, collected lawyer, was pacing up and down the library excitedly.

"We'll get it! By George, we'll get it yet!" he exclaimed. "I tell you, we're going to get this fellow, Temple, and get him right!"

Temple, scarcely less excited, was eagerly reading a letter from the New York Detective Bureau.

"Listen! It does sound as though we will," he declared, as he ran over again the paragraph in the letter.

"'Mr. Cane reports to us that he has gotten track of the letter which you seek. He saw it only for a moment on the file, and then was called away by Mr. Brady before he had a chance to get it. The letter was from Granger, and Mr Cane thinks it is just what you wish. If he secures the letter he will communicate at once with you.'"

"I wonder what it is," muttered Temple.

Craven was rubbing his hands with joy.

"One thing you may be sure of," he exclaimed. "Cane would never have made such an encouraging report unless it was something of the highest importance. That young fellow is a wonder. I went by the Detective Agency myself. They told me they had written you, and I left instructions if Cane got the letter to come up here at once. They said that they were also on the track of other information, and would let you know the instant they secured it."

Temple looked at his watch.

"There are two more trains. You are sure he'll bring it?"

"Sure," agreed Craven, and he walked over to lay his hands on his friend's shoulder.

"I tell you, old man, I'm glad for this. You may be indicted any day now. Brady will go on the stand and perjure himself."

Getting New Evidence

"He'd perjure somebody else if he could invent the crime," agreed Temple bitterly.

"Yes, that's it," said Craven. "As long as Granger remains in prison it reflects on him and the light hurts his eyes. He's got to get Granger out, and unless we have clinching truth his evidence will be too strong for you. We've got to get a knockout piece of evidence."

The entrance of the butler broke in on their talk.

"A letter for you, sir, brought by messenger," he said, presenting an envelope, which Temple seized eagerly.

"From the detective," he exclaimed, as the butler closed the door after him.

"Read it," Craven blurted out.

And Temple, tearing open the envelope, read hastily:

"'We have discovered the woman for whom party has spent large sums of money, dating from time party is supposed to have received funds. Her name is Rose Franchon. Party spent a great deal of money on her, but large part of money was invested in New York Central. Securities are held in party's own name, but the dividend order makes the dividend payable to the woman.

"'We are preparing other evidence and expect to have something of great importance soon. Hoping our work has been satisfactory, and that we shall soon be able to give you everything you desire. Very truly.'"

Craven rubbed his lean jaw with appreciation.

"You know," he said, "I'm beginning to like this fellow Granger. What a slick pup he is. Eighty thousand dollars in New York Central, and the dividend only to the woman. Kept a big, stout rope on his benefaction. By Jove! that's strong, but it isn't a clincher. It don't clear you, Temple. It looks good, but it's got to do more than look good."

Temple leaned back in his chair luxuriously.

Luck Is Turning

"I think the luck's beginning to turn, Craven," he said. "And do you know, I have a queer idea that my new secretary is responsible? We began to get along just as soon as she came."

"Yes," agreed Craven grudgingly, "she is a capable woman. You'll miss her common sense and good business-like ways."

Temple was staring away into space.

"Eh?" he said, coming back with a start. Then he laughed.

"Yes, I shall miss her common sense and business-like ways." Next, after a pause, he added softly, "Never married, did you, Craven?"

"Still sane, thank you," was the contemptuous retort, but Temple did not heed.

"Neither have I," he said. "Pair of old fools, we are. You know, Craven, that girl has beautiful hair. I like a woman, Craven, that has a soft, earnest voice, don't you?"

Craven looked up with disgust.

"What the thunder are you getting at?" he exclaimed.

"Getting at?" laughed Temple. "I don't know, Craven; I hope I'm getting happiness. If this case turns out right, and my name is cleared, I am going to be married. Provided, the finest woman in all the world will have me, Craven," he added tenderly.

The old lawyer stood staring, with eyes and mouth wide, when the door opened quietly and the low, musical voice of the secretary said:

"Are you ready for me to take your letters, Mr. Temple?"

CHAPTER X.

Treading Dangerous Ground

"WORK? Who wants to work? I don't."

Temple leaned back in his chair, smiling up at the secretary.

"But, Mr. Temple, I must earn my salary," she protested.

Craven had gone and the two were alone in the library.

Temple dismissed the argument with a large wave of his hand.

"You earn it. You earn it by making me happier; making me stronger; making me braver. Besides, if you insist on limiting your duties to the grinding tick of that typewriter, I'll let you do twice as much to-morrow."

"Come, let's take a day off. Good-by, conscience; who cares? To-morrow the deluge! Who cares?" He ended with a laugh and a mock heroic gesture, defying the world. Anna caught the spirit of his mood.

"There is a kind of fascination in standing on the brink of eternity and stopping to dance a highland fling, isn't there?" she agreed.

Temple moved over to the fireplace where, standing with his hands behind him and his back to the blaze, he smiled down on her.

"There's a fascination in everything," he said. "Everything superlative. The biggest gambler, the boldest, daring, colossal impertinence—like your fling on the brink of eternity—that's what draws us, fascinates us."

Anna was looking at him, her eyes widened.

Good Memory for Faces

"You are the first man I've known who feels that," she said softly, with sympathy and admiration.

"Well, all my women acquaintances don't subscribe to it, either."

Anna had let herself go. The sympathetic bond between her and Temple, which had always asserted itself when she was not on guard, now drew her, stronger than ever. She was as one with this man; her heart, her mind, her feelings responded intuitively to the play of his mind and emotions. It was so hard to draw back consciously from the keen delight that an unrestrained talk with him always brought. True to her nature, she drifted straight up to the dangerous brink.

"Yes," she exclaimed, "it is the big things; great deeds, big hearts, big natures. I can't stand pettiness."

Temple nodded.

"You're right; neither in man nor woman. What was it you were going to say the other day? You took me back twelve years, then you dropped me abruptly when Craven entered."

Anna smiled.

"Oh, I was only going to recall the times when we used to meet downtown. You see, I have a good memory for faces."

"Have you?" exclaimed the man eagerly. He was all smiles, but Anna dropped him with the casual remark:

"Yes, I passed our old elevator boy on the street last year. I knew him, too, though it had been twelve years since I had seen him. It was he called my attention to you."

Six days of good temper in every box of Cascarets. Six days when you feel at your best; no headache, no dullness. Are they worth ten cents?

It is folly to talk of the "laxative habit."

The habit lies in eating the wrong sort of food, and too much of it. And in getting too little exercise.

While you do that, you must give the necessary help to the bowels in some other way.

Else there is always a penalty.

Here is the way to avoid it:

Eat coarse food in moderation. Eat plenty of fruit, many green vegetables. Drink no alcohol. Walk ten miles per day.

Those are Nature's ways for keeping the bowels active.

The next best way is Cascarets.

Cascarets, better than anything else, supply the place of laxative foods and of exercise.

They do what right living would do. And they do it just as gently, just as naturally. They are vegetable.

You'll need them just as long as you live in-doors, and eat rich foods; and no longer.

Take them as you take food—when you need it. Carry a box in your pocket, and take one Cascaret at a time. That's better than to suffer and wait.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and

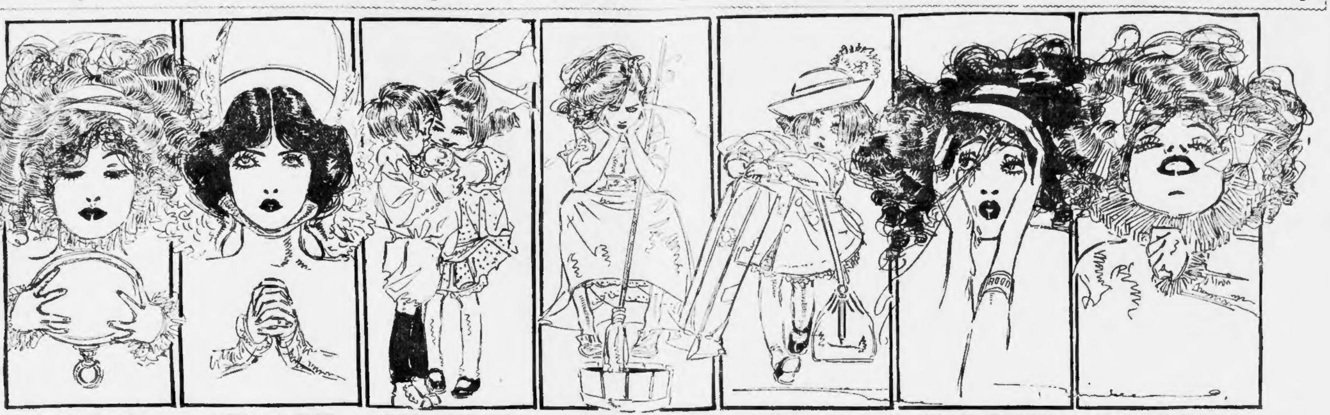
How Easy for Billy to Choose a Betty if the Old Nursery Rhyme Were True — By Nell Brinkley



Monday's child is fair of face;
Tuesday's child is full of grace;
Wednesday's child is loving and giving;
Thursday's child must work for a living;
Friday's child has far to go;
Saturday's child is full of woe;
The child that is born on the Sabbath day
Is blithe and bonny and good and gay.
—OLD RHYME.

It would be bullee, you Billys, if you might get the Bettys doped out by that. If the old rhyme that most mothers tell you when you are very little about the really and truly fairies that make folks what they are on the day they come alive was true, you could do it on your fingers, and when you came to the day your Betty was born you'd know what she was and would be forever and ever, amen.

Whether she'd be as fair as the sun and the sea; if she'd always turn her mild eyes up and fold her hands and never talk back; if she'd always pat you when you passed, and give you all the lobster in the salad and eat the celery her own self; if she'd wash off the pretty blue and white tiles at morning and night, or quick love another Billy, after you had folded your hands and gone out into the dark; if she'd be a roving gypsy and make you move the furniture and lug baggage all your life with her; if she'd make big eyes and a puckered mouth, and the tears would roll down her arms from her chin, when she couldn't have two tiger heads on her muff 'stead of one; if she'd laugh, laugh with tender eyes for you, and love you, and never call you naughty names, and pout—just always laugh with you and call you pretty names, and be gay, and love you till you both died.

Oh, it would be easy, if the tale our mothers tell when we are very little was true!

Locking the Stable Door

A Red Flag of Warning to Parents Against Folly

By DOROTHY DIX

THE old proverb concerning the folly of locking the stable door after the horse is stolen has no other such luminous exemplification as in the way parents rear their children.

It would almost seem as if people bring up their children to be one thing, and then break their hearts because their offspring are not something else, which is about as sensible as it would be to spend your time making a pudding, and then be disappointed because it didn't turn out to be roast beef.

DOROTHY DIX.

Every few days I get a heartwail from some distracted mother, saying that her Sadie is crazy to go on the stage, and that it will kill her if she does, and asking how she shall prevent it and keep the girl at home.

How They Started Sadie

Investigation of such cases almost invariably shows that from the time she was a kindergarten baby Sadie has had the love of showing off and a yearning for the glad hand inculcated in her. When she wore pinafores she was taught to "say pieces" before the long-suffering friends who visited her parents. As a schoolgirl she was put forward and took a conspicuous part in the school exercises, and her father and mother swelled up with pride until they almost burst at the way she played "The Maiden's Prayer," and at all the church sociables her family stood around in a trance of joy while she recited "Little Ma-a-a-bel with Her Fa-a-ace Ag-a-ainst the Window Pa-a-ane" in a white muslin dress and a cracked ice voice.

In her desire to be always in the public eye and her thirst for the excitement of applause the girl has been encouraged, aided and abetted by her father and mother. Yet when she grows up with a mad desire for the footlights, which is a logical outcome of the way she has been reared, her parents have hysterics at the very mention of the stage.

Sadie's Probable Fate

This is mighty unfair to Sadie and this either in the girl defying her parents and following the bent they have cultivated in her or else in her becoming that most afflicting thing on earth—the woman who goes through life believing that she could have been a second Sarah Bernhardt if only her family had let her.

Personally, I am unalterably of the opinion that parents have no right to interfere with their children's careers. In spite of the law of heredity, plenty of old hens and roosters do hatch out swans and because they are not web-footed themselves is no reason why they should keep the fledglings that nature destined for the water growing up on their own particular little mounds.

The majority of parents, however, entirely disagree with me on this point, and so I would merely represent to them that they would save themselves, and incidentally Sadie, a great deal of trouble if they would not wait to lock the stable door until after the horse is stolen.

The Right Way to Start Sadie

If you, my dear sir or madam, have conscientious scruples against the stage, or if you have any weird ideas about its being the open door to perdition, then begin to manifest against it, as our Christian Science friends say, in time. Cut out the school exhibitions. Put your foot down on the amateur theatricals. Keep Sadie from ever getting a taste of public applause or from suspecting that she has a vestige of dramatic talent in her system.

In a word, if you are determined that your daughter shall be a shy and retiring violet, raise her in a nice, quiet, secluded spot. Don't bring her up to be a brazen sunflower and then wait and weep because she isn't a violet.

And as to Marriages

The folly of waiting to lock the stable until after the horse is stolen finds its most striking examples, nowadays, in the idiotic way that parents act about their children's knowledge that propinquity is the greatest of all matchmakers, and that if you throw any two young people together in daily association nothing but a direct miracle from heaven will save them from falling in love with each other.

All men and women old enough to have families of their own are perfectly aware of this fact. More than that, they have seen the most unsuitable and disastrous marriages result from this cause alone, yet they never lift a finger to prevent their own children from meeting with such a fate.

There are many people who are violently opposed to the marriage of cousins, for instance. But that does not keep them, when they happen to have a beautiful young daughter, from inviting some attractive male relative to come and live with them or to make them indefinite visits.

Courting the Inevitable

The thing that anybody with a grain of intelligence would know was bound to happen, does happen nine times out of ten. The impressionable young people, already in love with love, and looking for mates as artlessly and innocently as the birds in Spring, fall in love with each other, and then there is the mischief to pay.

The parents are horrified. They refuse to countenance such a thing, and there are broken hearts and broken family ties, and life is never the same again to any of those who must pay for this stupid parental blunder.

The ability that fathers and mothers display of being surprised at the people that their children fall in love with is one of the most wonderful phenomena of nature. Parents will give a dissipated and worthless young man, who, however, is handsome and fascinating, the run of their house for years, and then they fall down dead with amazement when he and their cherished daughter come in, hand in hand, and ask for the parental blessing on their union.

'Ware Cinderellas

Or, the parents will extend a patronizing protection to some pretty, sweet, half pathetic figure of a young girl of a lower rank in life, and have her continually at their house, doing the Cinderella act; and still it takes two doctors to revive them from the shock when they find out that the son who is their pride and joy has secretly married her.

Of unavailing regrets, none is more bitter than those of parents who know they are really to blame for the unhappy marriages that their children have made. In the cruelly clear aftersight, many a father and mother sees how just the turn of a hand, if it had been done in time, would have saved a beloved son or daughter from a lifetime of misery. But they do not make it. They wait to lock the stable door after the horse is stolen.

Words of Warning

I wish that I might make these words a red flag of warning to every father and mother in the land; but by all that I can think of, I do urge them to realize that their children's hearts are built exactly on the same lines as those of others.

The children are prone to the same weaknesses and subject to the same dangers, so never let any man habitually visit your daughter that you would not be willing to receive as a son-in-law at a pinch.

Quarantine, as you would against the smallpox, against any relatives or religion of which you disapprove, and rather take into your house a snake than the kind of girl you do not wish your son to marry.

An Unhappy Joke

"SAW a strange sight on the avenue yesterday," said the passenger with the storm coat. "A man past middle age, a very respectable looking man with gray hair, walked down the north side of the street, wearing one of the shabbiest looking overcoats I ever saw. The velvet collar was napless and frayed, the torn lining hung down below the skirt and the pockets sagged down, and the garment was faded from its original black to a dingy green. Everybody turned and looked after the man."

"Of course he was wearing it because of some freak election bet," said the little man in the corner.

"That's what I thought," said the other man. "No doubt that's what everybody thought. But everybody was wrong."

"Eh!"

"Yes. The old man stopped on a stairway near the First National Bank, and I stopped there, too. As I passed him I couldn't help joking him about the bet and the coat. I wish I hadn't."

"Why so?"

"The poor old chap said it was the only coat he had."

AGREED FOR ONCE

"A poor man's chances for becoming rich," declared the optimist, "are as good as they ever were."

"Yes," grunted the pessimist, "just about."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

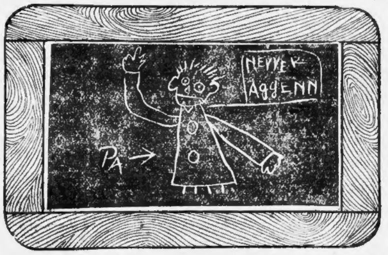
Pa Attends the $10,000 Beauty Special Matinee, and Now Says "Never Again"



This picter is Pa saying Nevver Aggenn. He has had a long talk with Ma

THE picter on my slait to-day is Pa saying Nevver Aggenn. He is saying it jest after he has had a long talk with Ma, & he meens it, too. Ma gaive it to him awful hard.

Last Saturday morning Pa & sum of his gentelmun frends went to the theeter in the forenoon to see a lady wich was called Gallytea, the Ten Thousand Doller Buty. Pa was invited to go to this show by Eddie Pigeon, you can fix it al rite with yure wife, Mister Pigeon told Pa, ask her to cum along with you, & then in the morning doant call her & let her oversleep.

So Pa caim hoam the nite beefoar the show & sed to Ma, Wife, our old pal Eddie Pigeon has gave us a invitashun to see a speshul matinay in wich sum yung person by the naim of Gallytea will do sum living picters, such as Spring, Fall, Winter, etc. He sed I shud be shure & bring you.

How vary fine, sed Ma, I will be reddy to go. This is going to be a grate show, sed Pa, it is to be gaiv by Miss Gallytea alone, & in sum of her costume I understan she wares as much as ten thousan dollers worth of furs. Deer me, sed Ma, I shud think she wud git awful warm up thare on the stuffy stage.

Pa Is Vary Thoughtful, Ma Sed

Thay call her the Ten Thousan Doller Buty, as I toald you beefoar, sed Pa, & if she is as good as thay say, she will be cheep at half the price. Be sure & be on the job in the morning, sed Pa.

In the morning Ma was awful sleepy & Pa got up about nine o'clock & dressed vary quiet, & put on his overcoat & sed to me, Bobbie, wen yure Ma wakes up tell her that I tried three times to call her, but she looked so tired that I didn't have the hart to rouse her from her re-freshing slumber.

So wen Pa was gone & Ma woak up I toald her wat Pa had sed, & she sed That is vary thoughtful of yure Pa. I didn't sleep good the erly part of the nite.

Ma was satisfied all rite till Pa caim hoam to dinner & started to tell about Miss Gallytea. Well, sed Ma, how was the Ten Thousan Dollar Buty? Oy Oy, sed Pa, what a dreem! She was a butiful, butiful superb creechur, Pa sed, a sort of cross between Venus & Juno & the Hevvunly Twins.

She was, sed Ma. She sure was, Pa sed. In silent rapture we gazed at her, me & Sam McKee & Al Thomas & about a hundred night editors & artists wich had cum in the interests of True Art. In silent bliss we gazed, sed Pa, & wen we saw that wundrus figger floteing thru space, as it were, in a fleecy gauze wrapping, we thought that nevver, in all time, had such a vishun been befoar.

Indeed, sed Ma, & whare was her ten thousand dollars worth of furs? I thought you sed she was going to ware furs. I thought she was, too, sed Pa, but she crossed me. She checked them at the door, Pa sed. But oh, what a dreem, what a dreem! Jest think, only Ten Thousand Dollers for her, & the Giants paid Eleven Thousand Dollers for Marquard! Oy, Oy, Pa sed.

Ma was beginning to look funny at Pa, & her eyes was almost shut. Was this wunderful parry-gon of buty anything like me, sed Ma. Well, Pa sed, yes and no. She was taller than you, Pa sed, but you had it on her in the width. Her face was moar handsum, but it didn't have so much expresshun as yure face has. Yure face has moar expresshun than any face I evver saw, sed Pa, espeshully wen I am delayed in a Subway accident. She was moar slender & willowy, Pa sed.

Oh, I suppose so, I suppose so, sed Ma. I suppose the next thing I know you will be leeving me & getting sum yunger & moar luvly girl.

Go on, sed Ma, in yure loose ways of living. Go to all them seekret matinays you want to & look at all the living picters you want to. I know vary well I am not butiful, Ma sed, & I doant blaim you much, perhaps, for wanting to see moar of life.

Ah, well, sed Ma, wen my pashunt hands is still forevver & the sound of my voice can no longer reech yure eer, then you will look back and think of the faithful wife that cared for yure hoam & loved you better than the wurld shall evver know.

Go on and see yure old cloke models, sed Ma. Go on, Go on, Go on! Boo hoo, sed Ma.

For Hevings saik, sed Pa, I didn't know I ever done anything wrong in going to see that matinay.

Then Ma ran into the bed room & slammed the door & Pa sed Nevver Aggenn, wich is the picter I have drew on my slait.

CRULLERS

TWO cups sugar, two eggs, piece butter size of an egg, half cup milk, two heaping teaspoons of baking powder, flour to mix soft. GLADYS PERKINS.

No. 57 Russell street, Worcester.

DELICIOUS CAKE

TWO cups of sugar (granulated), one cup butter, one cup milk, three cups flour (sifted three times), three eggs, one-half teaspoon saleratus, one teaspoon cream of tartar. Stir butter and sugar together till smooth, then add beaten yolk of eggs. Dissolve the saleratus in the milk and add to the mixture. Sift cream of tartar with the flour, then mix all together. Last of all, add the beaten whites of eggs, and flavor with almond. Bake in long pan and frost with white frosting. Much improved if chopped English walnuts are mixed in the frosting. I hope some one will try this, for it is indeed like its name, "delicious."

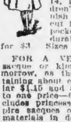
Tomorrow's Best Bargains

Money-Savers for Thrifty Shoppers Selected by an Expert



YOU CAN PURCHASE misses' and children's coats at Conrad's to-morrow at reduced prices. Twelve full length kersey coats, cut on mannish lines, in shades of brown and navy, that were formerly $15, may be had for $10. These coats are lined throughout with satin and come in sizes 14, 16 and 18 years. The children's coats are made of mannish mixtures, in dark colors, cut in boyish fashion, with lap pockets, velvet collar and good durable lining—regular $5 coats for $3. Sizes 6 years to 14 years.

FOR A VERY PRETTY DRESSING sacque or kimono, shop at Filene's to-morrow, as they have an odd lot, containing about eighty styles, that are regular $1.15 and $1.50 values, to be marked to one price—69 cents each. The lot includes princess, shirtwaist, coat and empire sacques of the prettiest fleecedown materials in delicate floral patterns, also an assortment of striped and Persian effects, some trimmed with contrasting Ottoman on sleeves, neck and front. There is a splendid variety of styles from which to choose.

FOR THURSDAY SHOPPERS THE Henry Siegel Company have arranged some special bargains in net and silk waists. Many attractive styles in white and ecru nets, in long and short sleeve models, attractively trimmed with val laces and medallions, also a pretty model in the popular tailored nets, with cluny insertion and several well-made waists of gray chiffon taffeta trimmed with French knots and fine tucking, not one in the lot less than $3.98, and many prices ranging up to $6.98, will all be marked to $2.98 each. All sizes will be found in the lot, but not in every style.

IF YOU ARE THINKING OF PURCHASING dinner knives for Thanksgiving do not neglect to shop at Vorenberg's Novelty Shop on Winter street to-morrow. Several dozen sets of Landers, Frary & Clark steel dinner knives, having a good white celluloid handle, the kind that regularly sell for $3.50 a dozen, will be marked to $1.23 per set of six on Thursday. These are excellent value and should not be overlooked.

TO-MORROW IN THE INFANTS' DEPARTMENT at Jordan Marsh's, two particularly good lots will be marked to one-half and less for quick clearance. The first lot contains twenty-four little Russian box plaited dresses, in sizes two years and three years, made of imported figured repp, former price $1.15 and about twelve little bloomer suits, made of neat striped lineln cloth, in sizes 2 years to 5 years, which were formerly $1.50. These will be marked to 69 cents each. The second lot, about four dozen babies' Dutch caps, made of white bengaline silk, have been reduced from 85 cents to 25 cents. Both are bargains.

IF YOU WOULD LIKE to buy a good kimona or dressing sacque for 25 cents you will find some splendid values in an odd lot of 39 cent and 50 cent goods that James A. Houston will close out on Thursday. They are made Camille and jacket style of pretty floral flannelette, some trimmed with bands of Persian material. At 25 cents they are bargains.

A BARGAIN IN A SEPARATE BLACK broadcloth coat will be offered to early shoppers at Wolf's, "My Clothier's," on Thursday. A small lot of hip-length, tight-fitting coats, made of fine quality broadcloth, lined throughout with guaranteed satin, have just been reduced to $3.98 each. At $5.98, their former price, they were considered excellent value, but as there are only two sizes—34 and 36—they have been marked to this special price for quick clearance.

When a Girl Is a Cat

She Discredits Her Own Sex and Makes Men Hate Her

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

GOING down to the country the other day I sat opposite two young girls.

Presently another girl joined them. They evidently knew her well, and greeted her pleasantly; but after the greeting they absolutely ignored her. They giggled and whispered, and the newcomer looked thoroughly embarrassed and uncomfortable.

The girls were merely thoughtless, and engrossed with their own interests; but, had they only realised it, they were in reality most rude.

These girls were no great exception. I have seen dozens of girls do exactly the same thing. Sometimes unconsciously, sometimes intentionally.

I have even seen two tiny girls of five or six put their heads together and whisper secrets, much to the discomforture of some other small companion.

Men Hate Girls That Are Cattish

Men never do that sort of thing. If two talk together and ignore a third, the talk is of a business nature, and the third man knows it is, and takes no offence.

They would never dream of putting their heads together and whispering.

There is no excuse for that sort of thing, and I tell you, girls, that not only is it unkind, but it does not pay to be disagreeable to your own sex.

There is nothing that so disgusts a man as to hear a girl talk against other girls. He does not believe what she says, and puts it down to jealousy; and in his heart he takes the side of the girl who is being abused.

Men are very fair in matters of that sort. They have no petty smallnesses. Faults they have aplenty, but they are big faults.

There is no woman who can afford to be without friends among her own sex. Remember that, and never say things that will antagonize your women friends.

Don't be a cat! There is no woman so disliked as the cattish woman.

Be Kind to the Strange Girl

Men can hardly comprehend her pettiness; but women see through her every time.

Some women consider it complimentary to be spoken of as a "man's woman," but it is not complimentary; it simply means that the woman will not take the trouble to be nice to other women—that she saves all her smiles and pleasantries for men.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Be as cordial and nice to men as you like, but don't forget your own sex. Stand by your girl and women friends before all else.

I once knew a girl who, when alone with other girls, would sit around, looking sulky and bored to death; but the moment a man entered the room she changed like magic.

Can you imagine the fun that the other girls made of her and the contempt they felt for her.

Always be nice to the strange girl. Remember that she feels shy and out of it, and make some effort to make her feel at home.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

A POOR LOST LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of seventeen. Two years ago I met a young man two years older than myself. We went together for about six months, when we had a quarrel, in which we were both to blame. Four months later we made up, and he asked me if he could call again. I consented, and since then we have gone together occasionally. He will call steadily for a couple of months, and then I will not see him again for three or four weeks, when he will write and say he was busy and did not have time to call. He will name a day that he will call, and then will not come until the following week or so, while I will stay in and wait for him. He does not want me to go out with other young men, and gets angry when I say anything about him going out with other girls. I have a number of young men friends that have asked me if they could call, but I always say no, because I know this other young man will come back. He has told me he loves me. I also love him dearly. Do you think that if he loved me dearly, as he says he does, he would treat me this way? A. R. V.

I CANNOT say that I think much of his manner of showing his love. I think you are very foolish to waste your time on such an unsatisfactory young man. He treats you very shabbily and has no right to expect you to give up other men for his sake. Take my advice and let him go, as I do not think you will ever be happy with him.

FREE FLESH BUILDER

Any Man or Woman Can Now Be Plump and Well Developed.

50 Cent Package Free.

Just because you are thin and underweight, do not think you have to stay in that condition.

Thanks to a new discovery, you can be plump, symmetrical, well developed and vigorous, with the bones covered with good, solid flesh, the hollow places filled out, and the cheeks and face made plump, full and attractive.

And the beauty of it is, it will not cost you a penny to see whether this treatment will do all this for you or not, as a full-sized 50 cent package will be sent you by mail without charge if you simply write for it. (See coupon below.)

There is no strenuous exercising required, no drastic diet necessary. All you have to do is to take four times a day a little tablet of Sargol, the new flesh building principle, then weigh yourself once a week to note the increase as the pounds pile up.

This new treatment increases the red corpuscles in the blood, strengthens the nerves, and puts the digestive tract into such shape that your food is assimilated and turned into good, solid, healthy flesh instead of passing through the system undigested and unassimilated. It is a thoroughly scientific principle, this Sargol, and builds up the thin, weak and debilitated without any nauseous dosing. In many conditions, it is better than cod liver oil, and certainly is much pleasanter to take.

Simply cut out the coupon in this notice and send it with your name and address and ten cents to pay distribution expenses to the Sargol Company, 1143 Herald Building, Binghamton, N. Y. and you will receive by prompt mail a regular 50 cent package without charge and without incurring any obligations.

COUPON.

This certificate and 10 cents to help defray distribution expenses entitles the holder to one fifty-cent package of Sargol, the home treatment which makes thin folks plump and attractive.

Receipt That Cures Weak Men---Free

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, failing memory and lame back, brought on by overwork, that has cured so many sick and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain strength quickly and quietly should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription, free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence, so that any man, anywhere, who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what, I believe, is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Mr. A. E. Robinson, 4007 Luck Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid receipt, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, free of charge.

ELECTION OVER PEOPLE NOT AFRAID TO BUY PIANOS

Business is pouring in upon us—People who have been afraid of the future have been holding back, thinking that they might not be able to meet payments, but now all uncertainty is over, and from all indications we are going to have prosperity with a rush—The mills are opening, the factories are going back to full time for all departments and business is already brisker all over the country—Buy at once, while prices are at the lowest in the history of the piano business—We will help this administration to whip the Trusts—Especially the bad Trusts—Help yourself by helping us in our fight with the Piano Trust. Remember—any make piano you wish at double cut prices.

WE WILL PAY SPOT CASH FOR PIANOS ANYWHERE TRUST PIANOS PREFERRED

$5 Down—$1 a Week The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their fattened commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to move around a little, go where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

GEORGE'S,	GEORGE'S,	GEORGE'S,
11 Summer St., Boston.	259 W. 34th St., New York.	101 S. 15th St., Phila., Pa.

George's Established 1879.
George's Still Flourishing in 1908.

ESTABLISHED in 1879, as the originators of the sale of merchant tailors' misfit and uncalled-for garments, 1908 finds us enlarged until we now have parlors in the 3 leading cities of the East. Those offers of $12, $15, $18, $20, $25, $30 and $35 for Sack Suits, Prince Alberts, Walking Suits, Full Dress and Tuxedo Suits, Medium and Heavy Weight Overcoats and Cravenettes, which were custom made for $30, $35, $45, $50, $60, $75 up to $100 are too new. Only by honest advertising can a house [illegible] for 29 years, and expand every year. With the conditions due to a Presidential year, and a warm Fall making the arrival of garments from the tailors extra heavy, we meet the situation in a businesslike manner. We are satisfied with light profits in order to quicken sales. Here are 2 offers. Choice of [illegible] Suit or Overcoat, both garments tailored right up to date by Pierson of Broadway, N. Y. Suit is of dark gray English Worsted, known as "London Smoke." Overcoat is of English Melton. Made to order prices, $50. If either of you [illegible] $15. Over 1,000 other garments at from $12 to $35. GEORGE'S TAILOR PARLORS, 11 SUMMER ST. Near Washington. If thinking of an auto coat or a fur or fur lined coat for [illegible] wear, we can save you one-half the prices asked by furriers, department stores and others. If alterations are necessary to perfect the fit, we make them free of charge. Open every evening till 9. Saturday till 10.

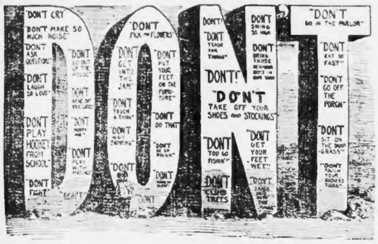
The Everlasting DON'T

At Every Turn It Stares at the Child, Checks and Discourages Him

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

We reproduce in this column, from Judge's Weekly, by kind permission of Mr. Schneider, a picture that carries a striking lesson and rebuke for some fathers and mothers. For every million of "DON'TS" in this land, more than nine hundred thousand are harmful, and fifty thousand more are useless and merely nagging. Nervous, overworked mothers, irritable, thoughtless fathers are forever plaguing and checking and discouraging their children with the eternal "DON'T."

DON'T do this, DON'T do that, DON'T run, DON'T get dirty, DON'T fall down, don't, don't, don't, don't—a string of don'ts that would reach almost to Jerusalem.



"DON'T CRY"
"DON'T MAKE SO MUCH NOISE"
"DON'T ASK QUESTIONS"
"DON'T GO OUT OF THE HOUSE"
"DON'T LAUGH SO LOUD"
"DON'T PLAY HOOKEY FROM SCHOOL"
"DON'T PLAY WITH MATCHES"
"DON'T FIGHT"
"DON'T PICK THE FLOWERS"
"DON'T GET INTO THE JAM"
"DON'T PUT YOUR FEET ON THE FURNITURE"
"DON'T TOUCH A THING"
"DON'T DO THAT"
"DON'T TEASE FOR THINGS"
"DON'T!"
"DON'T TAKE OFF YOUR SHOES AND STOCKINGS"
"DON'T YOU GO FISHIN'"
"DON'T CLIMB TREES"
"DON'T SWING SO HIGH"
"DON'T BRING THOSE BOYS IN"
"DON'T GET YOUR FEET WET"
"DON'T GO IN THE PARLOR"
"DON'T EAT SO FAST"
"DON'T GO OFF THE PORCH"
"DON'T SIT ON THE DAMP GRASS"
"DON'T TOUCH YOUR BROTHER'S TOOLS"

Fathers, have you ever noticed one particular kind of bad driver and the way he treats his horse? He has the whip in his hand; he is always touching the horse uselessly. And when the horse starts he pulls him back; and by and by he touches him again, then pulls him back again. You know how short a time it takes to spoil a horse in that fashion.

Well, it is about the same with children. You can worry them, intimidate them, DEPRIVE THEM OF THAT CONFIDENCE IN THEMSELVES WHICH GIVES THEM SUCCESS LATER, with this eternal, clogging, tiresome "DON'T."

There is, unfortunately, too much truth in the old wornout joke about the mother who asked her little boy in the other room, "What are you doing?" The boy said, "Nothing." And the mother immediately called out to him, "THEN STOP IT RIGHT AWAY."

The don't habit becomes chronic—a nervous, thoughtless habit, coming from a tired, jaded, more or less petrified brain. But that checking, discouraging word is addressed to a growing human being, to a mind developing, curious, eager for knowledge, WISELY EAGER FOR EXPERIMENT. The child's progress depends upon new ideas, new efforts, new experiments, new experiences, and every needless don't simply checks expansion and growth. When you read of the childhood of successful men, you constantly find in the child of genius a tendency to strange ideas, novel experiments. And you find, fortunately for the child, that the new thought, the new plans, the childish foolishness has been encouraged, or, at least, not efficiently interfered with. Many a child poorly, humbly born, has grown to great success, simply because there was providentially no grown-up human being with nothing better to do than to sit upon the child, morally and intellectually, and keep it down. Many a lad playing around a cottage door, experimenting to his heart's content, doing as he pleases, thinking, planning, dreaming, without interference, has grown into greatness, SIMPLY BECAUSE THERE WAS NO INTERFERENCE, simply because father and mother were working, and allowing him to develop with only occasional kindly direction.

Try to get along with fewer "don'ts," and see the good effect on your child.

Little Editorials from the People

WAKE UP, BOSTON!

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

May I as a New Yorker, just arrived in Boston, say a word on the side doors which obtain in your subway cars. Recently in New York it was seriously proposed to compel the company which operates the subway in that city to install such doors in all its cars with a view to expeditious loading and unloading. Boston, we were told, had quite solved the question and had reduced the station stops to the irreducible minimum.

It is by no means true. I rode in a car which left the Common for Sullivan square last night at 6 o'clock. I never in ten years in New York in hundreds of trips on its terribly crowded elevated trains and more recently in the subway there put in a more uncomfortable twenty minutes.

[illegible] To add to the discomfort, the side door, which was supposed to be the panacea, was more at fault than otherwise. It was used for both entrance and exit, and instead of a crush at either end as in New York, there was the additional annoyance of one even worse in the middle of the car.

I am told that when these cars were first introduced that a platform man maintained the centre door exclusively for exit, but that economies in operation have long since caused his elimination, to the great discomfort of the long-suffering American citizens who pay the piper. Wake up, Boston! Have you forgotten that this is the city of Faneuil Hall and Bunker Hill?

Hotel Touraine. JOHN W. CULLEN.

STEALING MINUTES

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

May I call your attention with a hope that the responsible officials will make some effort to remedy the abuse of the insufferable condition which obtains in matters of the subway station ticket sales in the evening hours just following the so-called "rush."

Last night at 9 o'clock I entered the Boylston street station of the subway, bound south. There were twenty packed in a line, extending halfway up the stairway, trying to buy tickets. One booth was in operation. All the others were exasperatingly dark and closed.

I submit that the lessees of the subway have no right to thus delay people. It is as much robbery to compel a passenger to sacrifice a minute or two in this way with almost always causing him to lose his car and many more minutes as it would be for the passenger to ride without paying his fare. It is a very different view, however, that the police officials take of the two offences.

HOW CAN WE ACCOUNT FOR POVERTY?

It is obvious that wherever civilization has reached its highest climb abject poverty is rampant. Why is this so? Is our civilization faulty? We boast of our great philosophers and are proud of ourselves; we criticise the pagan, the free-thinker, the Socialist, and yet we are unable to produce an institution, a government, a mind capable of removing that most dreaded foe of humanity.

How can we account for poverty? I mean the poverty that oftimes deprives us of food and clothing; the poverty that gives us our professional crooks and tramps; that robs us of our energy and high mentality, that causes us to be religiously callous.

To whom and to what must we lay blame? Not to Christianity—for its founder truly said: "Sell all thou hast and give to the poor;" not to Socialism, when it strictly propounds the theory "that whoever accumulates property disproportionately to his needs robs his fellowmen;" surely not to the poor themselves, who struggle like maniacs for bare subsistance, who are the everyday victims of its dreaded blows, and who are evidently willing to join hands and by any means put their adversary to flight.

When will man with grateful heart and hand bestow upon his poor brother the common blessings that God has so freely given him? We do not ask for honor, fame, or power, but as the rain falls from heaven, as the sun gives us heat and light, the rose its fragrance, the earth its increase, so may we receive our daily bread.

God has given us life, and the right to live must be maintained.

LOVEY WILL YOU GO SHOPPING WITH ME TO DAY
NEVER AGAIN

BACK TO NATURE-FAKING

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

(Immediately after Mr. Taft's election, the monkeys in the African jungle began filling each other's teeth and performing other miracles which would have been promptly denounced as nature-fakirs had Mr. Roosevelt continued as President.)

"I'M no longer a fake," chortled young Doctor Snake,
"But a natural marvel, forsooth,"
As he squirted cocaine to dislocate the pain
In the Crocodile's off wisdom tooth.
"The nerve I'll extract with precision exact,
And tune up your jaw fore and aft.
My skill wouldn't win if T. Roosevelt were in,
But I'll easily get it by Taft."

"SIT down in the chair, if you please, Master Bear,"
Thus soothingly spoke Doctor Trout.
"Keep perfectly still for a while, if you will,
And I'll have all those adenoids out.
Do not doubt that a Trout knows a whole lot about
The medico-surgical craft,
For T. R.'s going to quit, and there won't be a bit
Of learned denial from Taft."

GAS GIVEN
I'LL HAVE TO COME OUT

"HEREAFTER my name will be jewelled with fame,
Though envious rivals may scowl,"
Chuckled old Doctor Sloth, as he trimmed out a growth
From the throat of an etherized Owl.
"And my practice will grow, till, the first thing you know,
My life will be one grand, easy graft.
In the reign of T. R. I'd have not gone so far,
But I guess it will go with Bill Taft."

YOU CAME JUST IN TIME

OLD BORINGWORM ALWAYS CARIES AN UMBRELLA FOR FEAR OF GETING WET, HA! AN IDEA, I'LL GET HIM TO BORE INTO THIS BARREL OF WATER.
I UNDERSTAND THAT YOU CAN DRILL THROUGH SOLID OAK,
I SURE CAN!
LET ME SEE YOU DRILL A HOLE INTO THIS BARREL, SURE!
HA! HA!, NOW'S YOUR CHANCE TO USE YOUR UMBRELLA
WOW! WOW! IT'S WATER

LET'S INVITE UNCLE GEORGE'S FOLKS OVER FOR THANKSGIVING!
WHAT? NOT ON YOUR LIFE!
THAT UNCLE GEORGE OF YOURS IS AN OLD CRANK! — HE THINKS HE KNOWS IT ALL!
AND AS FOR YOUR AUNT SARAH,— SHE'S THE CONFOUNDEDEST GOSSIP IN SEVEN STATES !!
AND THOSE BRATS OF THEIRS — I WOULDN'T SIT AT THE SAME TABLE WITH 'EM,— IN FACT, I'VE GOT NO USE FOR ANY OF 'EM !!
HERE'S A LETTER FROM UNCLE GEORGE NOW, DEARIE!
I S'POSE HE'S FISHING FOR AN INVITATION FROM US, — HE WON'T GET IT, I'LL TELL YOU THAT RIGHT NOW!
WHY HE WANTS US TO COME TO HIS PLACE FOR THANKSGIVING, BUT I S'POSE YOU DON'T WANT TO GO!
SURE WE'LL GO! THINK I'LL THROW AWAY A CHANCE TO GET A GOOD THANKSGIVING DINNER FOR NOTHING?
